Kosygin's Absence
Raises New Rumors

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was conspicuously absent Sunday from the airport reception committee greeting Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's return from a vacation trip to the Soviet Republic of Kazakhstan.

Kosygin's failure to appear both for Brezhnev's departure Thursday and the return ceremony strengthened reports that the 72-year-old premier has suffered either a stroke or a heart attack. Kosygin was said to be hospitalized but not in serious condition.

Hijackers of Jet
Give Themselves Up

LARNACA, Cyprus (UPI) — Three Palestinian terrorists who hijacked a KLM DC9 jetliner over France surrendered themselves without a fight to authorities in Cyprus Sunday.

The hijackers demanded the release of eight Palestinian guerrillas held in jails in Israel. They threatened to blow up the plane with all 76 passengers in the air unless their demands were met, officials said. The Israelis refused to release the prisoners, following their fixed policy regarding terrorist demands.

S. Africa Ready To Resist Black Strike

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — The chief of South Africa's riot police said Sunday his forces were ready if blacks carry out reported plans for a national strike Tuesday to protest the nation's apartheid laws.

Churchmen appealed for an end to South Africa's "decades of suppressive legislation."

"We are prepared to deal with the strike if the rumors prove true. But I doubt that it is going to happen," Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, deputy commissioner in charge of riot control, told reporters who contacted him in Pretoria.

Pilot Disobeyed
Landing Orders

LAJES, Azores (UPI) — The pilot of a Venezuelan Air Force plane that crashed during a hurricane, killing all 68 persons aboard, disregarded instructions to switch his landing site, the Portuguese national radio said Sunday.

The radio said the pilot insisted on landing at Lajes on Terceira island, although he had been instructed to land at Santa Maria, another island in the 300-mile-long archipelago 740 miles west of the Portuguese mainland.

A Portuguese investigator, Capt. Ferreira da Silva, said "the plane tried to land two times and crashed on the third attempt."

Da Silva said the C130 transport crashed because of poor visibility and "bad atmospheric conditions."

Iran Arrests Man
In American Deaths

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A young man positively identified as one of the assassins of three American electronics experts was among three terrorists killed and five others captured by security police, a communique reported Sunday.

Police said Hassan Alad Push was slain Thursday in a shootout with police at a downtown square. The communique said the surviving Iranian driver of the Americans' car identified Push's body as that of the driver of the red Volkswagen used by the killers.

The pistol Push used in the Thursday gun battle was the same weapon that fired bullets into the bodies of the Americans, the communique said, and he also was identified as the buyer of the red Volkswagen.

Welfare Clients Shun Apple-Picking Jobs

KINGSTON — Only one out of an estimated 130 able-bodied persons receiving welfare or unemployment insurance benefits in Ulster County has accepted a job picking apples, according to Mrs. Dorothy Seama, Kingston Employment Office manager.

Local orchard owners have traditionally had to hire "off-shore" or out of state workers to harvest their annual crop and this year is no exception. An estimated 400 such migrant laborers will be working in the Mid-Hudson orchards this fall.

Mrs. Seama explained that her office began compiling the list of able-bodied persons on assistance or unemployment rolls about three weeks ago.

"It's our job as a state agency every year to try to recruit domestic workers only, as opposed to the foreign pickers. We simply tell those people who come to us for checks or jobs and those referred to us by social services that there are apple picking jobs. If they agree to work, we phone them when the legal harvesting season opens," she said.

What her office does not do is "pick on" welfare recipients for the highly strenuous work. "The jobs are offered to other individuals too, on the basis that people who come to us are still supposed to be looking for a job."

Area farmers agree that much of the fruit harvesting requires a strong back and steady nerves to carry large bushels of harvested fruit down 40 foot ladders.

Mrs. Seama commented that her office would not and could not tell relief recipients that they would lose their social services checks if they didn't pick apples.

"We don't determine that," Mrs. Seama said, "because it's not our job. That's a prerogative that belongs to social services. We can say that if they're not willing, it could have an effect on their welfare checks, since it is a firm and immediate job offer, and since we will have to notify social services that they are not interested. But we never tell home relief people they will not get their checks because that decision resides with social services."

The point to be made, she said, was that when people come to the employment office it is not always just to pick up a check. Many have been sent by social services to look for available jobs and to be referred by her office to those jobs.

Those people already working under public assistance on a home relief assignment are not considered part of the work force. As home relievers, they have been declared unemployable and are simply working off the equivalent of their checks. That's not considered actual work force employment and they, too, can be asked about their willingness to pick apples.

"It's certainly not forced labor," said Mrs. Seama. "No one has to pick apples. The choice is theirs. If there's a reason they can't do it, that is taken into consideration. But it's not our bailiwick to force anything. That comes under state social services regulations."

She added that, while figures are not yet complete, her office will not be satisfied with that lone Macintosh picker. "We're still going over our list," she said, "to try to recruit workers for the official harvesting date for Red Delicious apples."

Meanwhile, over at the county's Social Services Department, Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer had more to say on the matter. He confirmed that his department, along with the state employment service, has tried to find help for local orchard owners.

And it's true, he said, that the

SLEEPY HOLIDAY

The last of the sun worshippers lazed through the sunny afternoon Sunday at Kings Point Beach while end-of-the-season sailors tried to catch the final summer breezes of 1976 during the Labor Day Holiday.

Saugerties Minibike Accident Kills Boy

SAUGERTIES — A Jamaica, Queens, youth who was visiting friends in West Saugerties was killed in a minibike accident Sunday afternoon.

Saugerties Town Police said Irving Daniel Robinson, 16, of 168-24 127th St., Jamaica, Queens, was visiting the James Greenidge family with his mother and sister. The Greenidge family has a summer residence off the Manorville Road about two miles west of the West Saugerties Road, according to police.

ZPolice said Robinson was operating a minibike on the dirt road owned by the Greenidge family. He was apparently unfamiliar with the terrain and the road, and suddenly came upon a cable stretched across the road after rounding a sharp left-hand turn, police believe.

It was unclear exactly how Robinson met death, according to town police, who were still investigating late Sunday night. Police said Robinson may either have hit the cable or been crushed by the minibike as he sought to avoid it.

Robinson had severe neck and chest injuries.

New York Holiday Death Toll Is Heading Higher

By United Press International

With the last-minute crush of home-bound motorists still to come, the Labor Day holiday traffic death toll in New York State appeared Sunday almost certain to exceed that of last year.

In 1975, the state recorded one of its lowest Labor Day traffic tolls in the 26 years that records have been kept, according to the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

Fourteen persons died last year on the state's highways during the 78-hour holiday, the department said, compared with an all-time high of 50 deaths in 1972.

A UPI survey Sunday night showed 11 traffic fatalities in the state since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday. The holiday ends at midnight Monday.

Police agencies reported traffic at normal levels across the state with no unusual tie-ups. A threatened "work-to-rule" slowdown by employees so far has failed to materialize on the 559-mile New York State Thruway.

An impasse was declared Friday in negotiations between the Thruway Authority and the Civil Service Employees Association, which represents 2,200 toll collectors, clerks and other Thruway employees.

The state Public Employment Relations Board declared the deadlock and named the Rev. Canon David Randles, an Episcopal priest from the Albany suburb of Elnora, to mediate the dispute.

The National Weather Service said motorists faced generally clear weather through the remainder of the holiday, although temperatures were expected to be cooler than normal.

State Cuts Reimbursement by Two-Thirds

Towns To Lose $145,000 In Sewage Plant Rebates

ALBANY — The state Department of Environmental Conservation is cutting by two-thirds its reimbursement to municipalities operating sewage treatment plants.

The nine such operations in the county stand to lose approximately $145,000 for the next fiscal year because DEC says it has simply run out of money.

The pay-back program, which was initiated as a part of the Pure Waters act about seven years ago, allowed municipalities 33 1/3 per cent reimbursement for the actual operating expenses of its treatment plants.

In a letter sent last week DEC said it will only be allowing 10.5 per cent for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1976.

For the City of Kingston, with a sewage treatment budget for this year of $237,639, that means a loss of about $50,000 in expected revenue.

"It's going to have to come from somewhere," commented administrative assistant for Public Works Woodrow Wiehl, "they'll either have to increase taxes or cut back on some levels of service."

The village of New Paltz has set aside $71,530 for sewage treatment this year. They stand to lose about $16,000 under the new guidelines.

The Whittier sewage treatment district, located in Ulster, hadn't expected any paybacks and hadn't received any such funds for the past several years because of problems with the operation of its plant.

The state withholds any returns to municipalities if they find anything wrong with the way the plants are being run.

"This is the real problem," commented local DEC spokesman John Kwak. "We used the program to insure that the municipalities operated their plants effectively...instead of threatening them with lawsuits if they were not in compliance with state regulation, we could just say that we would withhold their money."

Kwak feels that the reduction from one-third to one-tenth will lessen the DEC's clout considerably in future negotiations. A spokesperson at the state office in Albany wasn't so sure.

"We just haven't had enough experience in the area to be sure what effect this will have," said Ms. Mary Spargo.

Commenting on the speculation by affected towns that this may be the last year DEC will even offer 10 per cent paybacks she pointed out that the appropriations have traditionally been made annually through the legislature. "There is just no telling what they will do next year," she said.

Stricter Laws Show Little Effect

Drug Sentencings Are Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New York's strict new drug law has failed to increase the risk of punishment for narcotics traffickers, according to a government study released Sunday.

Since the law was enacted Sept. 1, 1973, with the backing of then-Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, the number of sentences for drug offenses has declined and there has been no improvement in the time it takes to process cases, the study said.

"The risk of punishment facing offenders did not increase noticeably," said the staff of a committee formed by the Drug Abuse Council and the New York City Bar Association in an interim report. Sentences have been stiffer, as the law required.

Under the old law, between 5 per cent and 10 per cent of convicted offenders got more than one year, while a third did in 1974, the report said.

The law made illegal possession of smaller amounts of drugs punishable as felonies instead of misdemeanors, and it restricted plea bargaining with defense lawyers for suspects with prior records.

"Both in 1974 and 1975 there were fewer dispositions, convictions and prison sentences for drug offenses in New York State superior courts than there were in 1973," the report said.

Much of the trouble was caused by extra loads on the courts, although the state spent $55 million to help the courts handle increased caseloads, it said. The situation began to improve in 1975, it said.

"During 1974 the likelihood of a prison sentence...did not increase above old law levels because it took very long to process most of the serious new drug law cases," the report said.

"Last year, however, nearly half the convicted drug offenders were sentenced to prison compared to a third in previous years," it said. "There were 1,433 prison sentences in 1975 compared to less than 1,100 in 1974."

MISS POLISH QUEEN CROWNED

Christina Polacco, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Polacco, 42 West Abbey St., was crowned the first Ulster County Miss Polish Queen Saturday night by Faye Fogal, this year's Miss Ulster County. The contest was sponsored by the White Eagle Benevolent Society to choose a local representative to Pulaski Day in New York City Oct. 3. First runner up was Paula Wolnoski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wolnoski, 41 Hanratty St., and second runner up was Karen Gubinski, Linderman Avenue Extension.

Jammed Prisons Use Makeshifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's prisons are so crowded that states are placing inmates in converted hospitals, a hangar, vacant buildings, trailers and even tents, a government agency says.

Florida has resorted to tents, a former mental hospital and a converted airplane hangar. Michigan is using a Salvation Army hostel and 11 states are using trailers, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration said.

Inmate population explosions have become grave problems in some states as federal and state prisoners increased 11 per cent between 1973 and 1975 — from 192,092 to 218,205, the LEAA said in a weekend report.

In January, the total was estimated at 250,000. A recent study forecast an increase to 377,000 by 1985, requiring extra space that could cost $4.7 billion.

"A lot of areas just don't have the economic means to keep up," LEAA Administrator Richard W. Velde said. "Some judges have been reluctant to send persons to jail because of overcrowding problems."

As the states search for housing for overflow prison populations, more and more are joining in a nationwide experiment with trailers, the LEAA said.

Virginia has completed part of what may become the nation's first "Trailer Park Correctional Center," with 56 trailers at its James River Correctional Center in Powhatan County, the LEAA said.

Virginia borrowed 56 surplus government trailers for new inmates en route from jails to the state prison system, and is getting 40 more for another such center at Southampton, the LEAA said.

They are part of 475 trailers the Housing and Urban Development Department declared surplus after using most of them in 1972 to house flood victims at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The trailers are being loaned to 10 states for halfway houses, pre-release centers, work-furlough administrative offices, or to house overflow populations at nearby prisons, the LEAA said.

Arizona has borrowed 73, Arkansas 65, Louisiana 38, Michigan 9, Missouri 7, New Jersey 92, New York 2, Oklahoma 50, and Pennsylvania 43, LEAA said.

Georgia used $350,000 in LEAA funds to buy 25 trailers for work-release inmates and New Jersey received $134,369 for a trailer headquarters at a women's training program in Essex County.

Disclosure Board Urges Cut Of State Part-Timers' Pay

ALBANY (UPI) — The state Board of Public Disclosure has urged Gov. Hugh Carey and the legislature to cut the salaries of part-time positions on various boards which currently receive full-time pay.

The board, in a report Saturday to Carey, said the step could save "several million dollars" annually.

The panel said that in its other work it came upon "a significant number of high-paying term appointment positions where the person is receiving full-time pay for a part-time job."

"Many of these positions pay $32,000 to $50,000 per year and have fixed statutory terms ranging from two to six years," the panel said, adding that it believed "a substantial number" of the nearly 100 high-paying term appointee positions involved only part-time work.

"The board believes that if the state paid only a per diem rate for part-time work, with a reasonable fixed annual maximum cumulative expenditure, it would save several million dollars each year," the report said.

For instance, the panel said, "members of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board have advised the board that their positions have never been considered full-time and they have been permitted to engage in outside private employment."

The report said four members of the unemployment board "receive $32,250 a year and the chairman receives $39,650 per year in salary."

The report also cited some positions on the state Liquor Authority, and the Racing and Wagering Board.

The board said it ran across the problem "through the course of its regular work" putting into effect Carey's "Executive Order No. 10." It called for a more in-depth study by Carey and the legislature to remedy the situation.

Carey's executive order sets financial disclosure and other requirements for state employees under his control who make more than $30,000 a year or hold policy-making positions.

The board said that during its first year of operation, June 1975 through June 1976, it "fully reviewed and placed on public file financial disclosure statements for more than 800 persons employed by the state."

The panel recommended that Carey expand his order to require financial disclosure by another 9,000 to 11,000 persons in managerial positions in state agencies, regardless of their salary level and their "competitive" Civil Service classification.

The board also called for extension of the order to the various public benefit corporations of the Housing Finance Agency and Higher Education Services Corp., which have been created by the state.

The disclosure panel is chaired by Charles Desmond, who retired as chief judge of the state Court of Appeals 10 years ago.

Replying to the board, Carey said its report contained "recommendations that I fully accept and applaud."

He said his staff would begin working to implement the recommendations, including the five-fold expansion of the disclosure requirements from the current 2,000 persons who fall under its provisions.

Volcano Sends Up More Ash and Rock

TAAL, The Philippines (UPI) — The Mt. Taal volcano belched more ash and rocks Sunday in a display partially obscured at times by torrential rains.

The Volcanology Commission said tremors rocked most of Volcano Island, where Taal is located in the mountains 40 miles south of Manila.

In its latest bulletin, the commission said the volcano was still "in an eruptive stage," although chief volcanologist Gregorio Andal said earlier there were no indications of an imminent major eruption.

Taal's last major eruption was in 1965, when it killed 192 persons.

No casualties have been reported since the volcano began acting up Friday.

President Ferdinand Marcos flew to the volcano site Sunday with his wife and three children to distribute relief goods to more than 5,000 residents evacuated from Volcano Island and nearby lakeshore towns.

On hearing reports some farmers had been returning to the island during the day to tend their farms, Marcos ordered officials to stop them until the danger had passed.

Despite Taal's threat, tourists poured in to see the volcano.

Rubber Bargaining Goes On

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — United Rubber Workers officials, led at the bargaining table by President Peter Bommarito, and representatives of B.F. Goodrich Co. held marathon contract negotiations Sunday in efforts to end a strike that began April 21.

The officials met during the afternoon and took a "short break for dinner" before starting a night session. A union spokesman said "there's nothing to report at this time."

Goodrich is the only "Big Four" tire manufacturer that has not reached a settlement with the URW.

Bommarito arrived Saturday and said the two sides were prepared to "work through the night if necessary to come to terms."

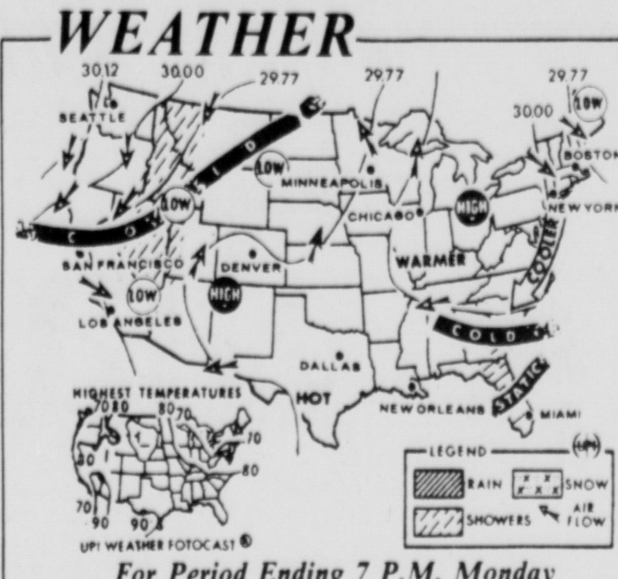

About 70,000 URW members had been on strike, but most now are back on the job. Goodrich employs about 10,000 URW members at seven plants across the country.

Brown Backs Bella

Ulster County Democratic Chairman Harold Brown has joined 14 other upstate chairmen in endorsing Bella Abzug's candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

Brown didn't give any specifics for his backing the only woman in the five way race for the right to face incumbent Sen. James J. Buckley in November commens only that she is "the best qualified of the group."

The state Democratic committee has indicated that it prefers the candidacy Paul O'Dwyer, but Brown doesn't see his move as a break with the powers that powers that be.

"There are five people in this race and there is support for all of them," he says.

Brown added that in Ulster the race is mainly between Abzug and former U.S. ambassador Daniel Moynihan.

Organization for Abzug's candidacy is coming mostly from women in the county, according to the chairman, who added that although there are 28,000 registered democrats here traditionally only about 10 per cent turn out for primary elections.

O'Dwyer and Abzug are the only two Democrats who have campaigned in Ulster county and Brown isn't expecting to see any change in that record before the September 14 polling day.

"We are trying to get Bella in here on the twelfth to attend three picnics, but I haven't heard anything definite," he said.

Buffalo's School Teachers Vote Wednesday Strike

BUFFALO (UPI) — The executive committee of the Buffalo public school teachers' union Sunday night unanimously recommended that teachers strike when schools open Wednesday.

The 23 members of the Buffalo Teachers Federation executive committee unanimously voted to approve a strike starting Wednesday and lasting "until a fair and equitable agreement is reached."

The union's president, Thomas J. Pisa, has predicted that the teachers will strike.

Pisa said Sunday there was little progress in talks between the union and the school district.

"There has been no progress on those items of major interest to teachers," he said.

Both sides held separate meetings Sunday night and were to meet together in a full bargaining session this morning.

Pisa said Saturday he felt city and school district officials were in "collaboration" to force a strike.

"The teachers would lose two days pay for every day they were out," he said.

FOOD AND WATER — A crew member of hijacked Royal Dutch KLM airliner carries food and water up a ladder to the forward section of the plane during a fuel stop here Sunday. The plane with 84 aboard was seized after a stopover in Nice, France, during a flight from Malaga, Spain, to Amsterdam.

Palestinians Hijack Jet; Israel Refuses Demands

LARNACA, Cyprus (UPI) — Three Palestinian hijackers took 76 passengers and five crewmen aboard a KLM Royal Dutch Airlines jetliner on a perilous flight toward Israel Sunday, then surrendered without a fight to Cyprus authorities.

The hijackers demanded the release of eight Palestinians held in Israeli jails. The plane circled the Mediterranean near Israel's coast for four hours while they threatened to blow up the DC9 in the air unless the Israelis met their demands.

Israel refused to budge on the release of the prisoners. Two F4 Phantom jet fighters went aloft to head off the hijacked airliner. Authorities at Ben Gurion Airport placed firetrucks and a crane near the runways.

One of the hostages, Mrs. Geertje Spanjer-Speerstre, a middle-aged Dutch housewife from Vlissingen, Holland, said later, "two Israeli planes were shadowing us."

"I waved to them from my window and one of the Israeli pilots, a very young man, waved back to me," Mrs. Spanjer-Speerstre said.

Finally the plane returned to Larnaca airport on Cyprus' southern shore, where it had made an earlier refueling stop.

After negotiations involving a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, local authorities and Archbishop Makarios, Greek Cypriot president of the Mediterranean island, they agreed to release their hostages and surrender.

The hijackers were guaranteed safe conduct to another country, apparently Libya. They were led off the plane blindfolded in the custody of Cypriot officials.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said the hijacked plane never tried to land and stayed at least 40 miles from Israel's shore.

Aboard the Dutch plane, in addition to the three hijackers, were 76 passengers, including eight children and five crew members. Most of the passengers were Dutch nationals returning from Mediterranean vacations.

KLM officials said that in addition to the Dutch passengers there were 13 Spaniards, five French, two Indonesians, one Belgian and three Arabs of unknown nationality aboard.

The flight began at Malaga, on the southern Spanish coast, Saturday evening en route to Amsterdam via the French Riviera city of Nice. The majority of the passengers boarded the flight at Nice, but Nice airport officials said they were certain the hijackers did not board there.

The hijack started 20 minutes after takeoff from Nice. The Palestinians, armed with grenades and pistols, ordered the Dutch pilot to fly to Tunis. Tunisian authorities blacked out the airport and placed barrels and other obstacles on the runways.

The plane hit an obstacle and damaged its landing gear but touched down without injury. After repairs it took off 2½ hours later with a full load of fuel.

Mrs. Spanjer-Speerstre said the landing at Tunis was "our most frightening moment."

"Tunis did not want us," she said. "There were no landing lights and the runway was blocked with logs. But the pilot, Capt. Peperkamp, steered around them and brought the plane down. He is a credit to humanity and to his company."

The plane landed at Larnaca, the only airport operating on Cyprus, at 8:31 a.m. (3:31 a.m. EDT). Cyprus authorities made no attempt to refuse the landing.

President Makarios appealed to the hijackers to release the passengers. But after refueling, the plane took off again two hours later for its hazardous attempt to force the Israelis to release the Palestinian prisoners.

The eight prisoners named included Magr. Hilarion Capucci, a Christian prelate sentenced to 12 years by an Israeli court in 1974 for smuggling arms to West Bank Palestinians, and Kozo Okamoto, a Japanese terrorist sentenced to life for his part in a spectacular shooting at the Tel Aviv airport lounge in 1972.

The hijackers, speaking over the plane's radio, asked the Israelis to prepare to fly the prisoners to an unspecified Arab airport. The Israelis, in line with long established policy, gave no sign of freeing the prisoners.

After the plane returned to Larnaca, the hijackers set two ultimatums for the release of the prisoners.

The first deadline passed without incident and the hijackers released all passengers and crew and surrendered half an hour before the second ultimatum was to expire at 7:25 p.m. (12:25 p.m. EDT).

Officials in Larnaca paid tribute to the efforts of the Palestine Liberation Organization representative in Cyprus and to Libyan embassy officials for persuading the hijackers to surrender.

Exam Set for Personnel Expert

KINGSTON — The county Civil Service Commission will hold an open competitive examination to fill the newly created position of personnel trainee on November 6.

Applicants for the job must apply before October 6 to qualify for the test.

The personnel technician post was approved by the legislature in August after the state Civil Service Commission issued a scathing report on local agency procedures and recommended that a professional in the field be trained and hired.

Under the program the state pays for the first six months of the $10,118 a year position and trains the applicant in the civil service department in Albany.

After the instruction period ends, the county must assume the costs and hire the trainee in a full time position.

One of the requirements for candidacy is that the person must be a resident of New York State and must have lived in the county for at least four months prior to the November 6th date.

The legislature had voted to require the residency stipulation in order to keep the job in the county with the hopes of perhaps hiring some one of the 8,000 unemployed in Ulster.

Minimum qualifications for the position are a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited four year college or university, responsible administrative managerial or professional experience, or any combination of the two.

Further details on the job and applications for the test can be obtained from the Ulster County Civil Service Commission, County Office Building, Kingston, either in person or by mail. Requests for mail applications must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Viking 2 Reports Mars Quakes

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 2 reported Sunday that its important "marsquake" meter was working and waiting for tremors to give scientists their first clue to the interior makeup of Mars.

An identical seismometer aboard Viking 1 failed and when word was received that Viking 2's instrument unlocked as planned after landing on the red planet, geophysicists in the control center cheered and applauded.

"It was a feeling of great relief and elation," said Dr. Nafi Toksoz of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The spacecraft's other systems also were reported working normally and Project Manager James Martin said he no longer was worried that the three-legged spacecraft might have received some hidden internal damage when it came down on the rock-littered plain of Utopia Friday.

He said what appeared to be a tear in an antenna probably was just dirt spattered up when Viking landed.

Viking 2's first color view of the surrounding landscape showed the rocky surface was red and the sky a pale pinkorange. The colors were similar to those pictures radioed back by Viking 1 from the Chryse desert 4,600 miles to the southwest.

Besides beginning its marsquake listening, Viking 2 started monitoring the weather at Utopia to see if the conditions differed from the rather consistent weather at Chryse.

The failure of the Viking 1 seismometer had left Toksoz and other seismologists out in the cold for seven weeks while other Mars scientists were analyzing their results.

"It has been frustrating, especially for those many of us who have been working on this project for eight years," he said in an interview.

The instrument can be considered the ears of Viking as its two cameras are its eyes. The seismometer is basically a pendulum-like iron weight and signal coil suspended by a spring between two magnets.

When the ground shakes, the pendulum moves and this movement is recorded by an electric signal.

"We have no idea how frequently marsquakes occur or how large marsquakes are or whether they occur at all," Toksoz said.

The failure of the Viking 1 seismometer means scientists will have seismic information from only one point on the planet and therefore will not be able to triangulate the data to determine the location of the tremor's source. It also complicates the effort to determine the nature of the Martian interior.

"Even with one seismometer we might be able to answer questions regarding whether there is a core inside Mars and how big it might be," Toksoz said.

The lone marsquake meter also will tell scientists for the first time something about the level of activity of tectonic processes that shape a planet's surface.

IBM, Hinchey Help Summer Project

Area Youths Got Lift to Work

A $225 grant from IBM and the aid of Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey gave a group of Ulster County youngsters the lift they needed to take part in a summer conservation program.

According to Dan Siegel of Broadway Central, the ten youngsters involved were considered problem adolescents and had been referred to BC by either the County Probation Department or the Juvenile Aid Division of the County Sheriff's Department. Noting that the kids did not seem to respond to such conventional therapy as weekly "rap" sessions, Siegel says he decided to give the kids something of more value.

It was about this same time, mid June, that Siegel came in contact with Frank Yacinda of the Mount Tremper Growth Center. Yacinda was reportedly interested in doing something with kids, and with the help of the State Department of Environmental Conservation, the pair came up with the idea of a pilot forestry program. This involved the clean up of state forest lands in Ulster County, as well as learning erosion prevention, and repair.

As the program was about to get underway in late June, Siegel realized that none of the local organizations which had promised to provide transportation for the youngsters were coming through. An article in the Freeman prompted a call from Assemblyman

Maurice Hinchey. "Although Hinchey has been helpful in the past," said Siegel, "we couldn't help but feel that his concern would result in just more lip service, such as we had been receiving from other sectors of the community."

Siegel says he was surprised when the Assemblyman showed up at Broadway Central the next day and offered to personally take a group of youngsters to the site. Unable to provide the personal service for any length of time, Hinchey contacted IBM who came through with a $225 grant.

The discussions which followed each day's activities offered a forum during which the youths were able to talk freely, something which could not be accomplished during the conventional therapy sessions. The youths were paid about $2.30 per hour for their 25 hours of labor per week.

Saugerties Cyclist Hurt in Dutchess

TOWN OF MILAN — A Saugerties man was injured when his motorcycle struck a car at the intersection of Route 199 and the Taconic Parkway in the Town of Milan Sunday afternoon, according to Rhinebeck state police.

State police said Shane Ellis, 37, of Main Street, Saugerties, was hurt when his motorcycle struck a car driven by Francisco Calderon, 47, of New Rochelle. State police said Calderon halted his car at the stop sign at the end of the exit ramp from the parkway, and then drove on, into Ellis' path.

Calderon was given a summons for failure to yield the right of way, answerable in Town of Milan Court Friday. Ellis was listed in satisfactory condition in Northern Dutchess Hospital late Sunday.

Apple-Picking Puzzle

As a story on page one today notes, Ulster County apple growers are saying they've been forced again this year to import foreign labor to pick the crop. That's hard to believe in a year when, apparently because there's not enough work to go around, home relief costs have doubled in this county.

The apple growers aren't to blame. They've informed the local employment and welfare agencies about the need for workers. And these agencies have passed the word on to welfare recipients who seem capable of doing such work.

Nevertheless only one person out of an estimated 130 able-bodied unemployed on the county welfare or unemployment rolls has agreed to take an apple-picking job.

Labor Day seems a particularly appropriate time to ponder this fact.

Most of us would not want to pick apples. It's backbreaking work. Most of us, in fact, probably aren't in good enough shape to harvest apples a standard of living and medical care far beyond what most societies have ever enjoyed. Our growing national wealth seems to have increased rather than diminished our consciousness of status. To do "migrant laborers' work" is now more of a humiliation than being on the dole in many people's minds. And except among those who are used to it, the idea of supporting oneself by hard physical labor has become too foreign even to consider.

Are there virtues after all in the Red Chinese and Cuban practices of requiring even members of the professional classes to take to the fields each year during harvest time?

The Greek historian Herodotus, ending his famous book on the collapse of the luxury-loving Persian Empire, remarked that "soft lands make soft men." The plain truth of that comment makes us wonder where we've come since the first colonists in Jamestown laid down the dictum for the newly arrived adventurers and gold-seekers: "They who do not work, shall not eat."

Campaigns Begin Today

WASHINGTON - Jerry Ford and Jimmy Carter are both running for president for the first time, meaning the campaign which begins in earnest on Labor Day may turn not on who wins it but on who doesn't lose it.

Carter observed wryly at a gathering of Democratic state chairman here that "we've already made some mistakes - I think that's inevitable in the Democratic Party."

The President, for his part, has just taken an astonishing gamble by picking as his campaign manager James Baker, who has absolutely no national campaign experience whatsoever.

Fortunately, not everybody has to hit the hustings this fall.

Item: Richard Nixon, ignored by his party's convention and politically isolated at his San Clemente estate, has some strong opinions about the presidential campaign anyway. He recently told a visitor that he believed Ford had a hard job ahead but would in the end win this election.

Nixon also said he didn't think Sen. Robsrt Dole was a wise choice for vice president because Dole adds nothing to the ticket. "Ford should have chosen either John Connally or Ronald Reagan," Nixon said.

Item: Whispers that White Hous press secretary Ron Nessen is on his way out have risen to a deafening roar. The word is that Nessen will not be press secretary after the end of the year, regardless of whether Ford is elected.

Probable replacement, if and when: Bill Greener, former Pentagon press spokesman who is now Ford's campaign press boss.

Item: Political losers don't die, they just fade quietly and slowly - away. At least, their staffs do. Reagan headquarters here will continue to function for another two months, sans candidate. There is a lot of bookkeeping still to be done, because of the financial filing requirements under the new campaign law.

Many of Reagan's staffers were so tired after the long campaign they opted for an early bedtime rather than watch the opposition accept the GOP nomination - and missed Reagan's finest performance. ABC is arranging a private screening of the speech so the staffers can see it belatedly.

Item: When Eugene McCarthy asked William Ruckelshaus, a Republican, to run with him on his third party ticket, Ruckelshaus replied: "In which order?"

That was the end of that.

Don't Tax Pistol Packers

Dear Editor:

Once upon a time, in the years before Sept. 10, 1976, our good citizens of Ulster County and the State of New York could apply free of charge through the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services for a finger print check and any conviction data by going to the Ulster County Sheriff's Department or another County Sheriff's Department in New York State.

Our N.Y. State Representatives have now decided we pay $10 for this service because the N.Y. State Division on Criminal Justice Services says we have no more money to spend.

When will our N.Y. State Representatives understand the public has no more money to spend on taxes like this?

When will they look around and say stop demanding more money from the little guy and the middle class and start understanding that increasing taxes is not the answer for N.Y. State problems or Ulster County?

The crook can break into a citizen's house and steal the guns then use them to do bodily harm, but the good citizen has to pay

$10 to have himself checked out by Criminal Justice Services. Then if everything is alright he or she pays $5 more for the right to buy a pistol license then the cost of $70 or better to purchase a pistol for the protection from the crook.

Now I ask you good citizens, is that the way we wanted this railroad run when we started in 1776?

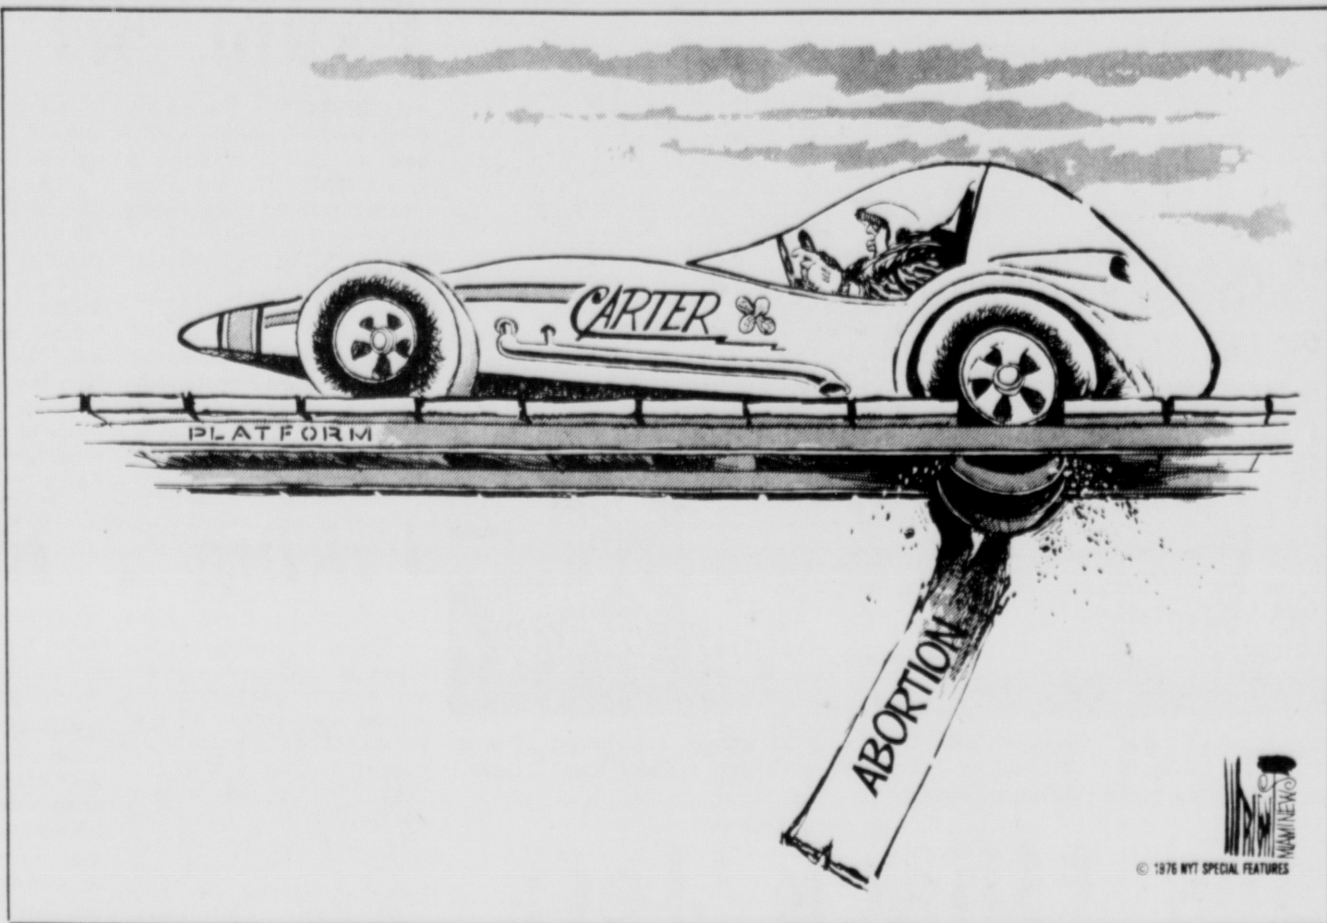

I believe if our State Representatives had real 1776 spirit they would oppose this increase and let the common folk live without increasing our taxes to the point we will have to move out of New York State to live.

I hope out there some place the New York State Representatives read this and start making laws to reduce taxes and not increase them because a state agency says it needs more money. This $10 increase will affect pistol permits, police applicants, railroad police applicants, athletic commission, civil service (sensitive positions) capital police, N.Y.C. housing authority, N.Y.C. transit authority, N.Y.C. Port Authority, correctional service, peace officers, guards and correction officers' titles.

The increase of $10 for this service will bring the cost of these jobs higher and that will cost the common folk more money in taxes to pay the increase in wages for these services.

In 1776 our representatives had common sense. All they have today is education that has not helped the common folk pay less taxes.

Evans And Novack

Downgrading Solzhenitsyn

(Nicholas Von Hoffman is on vacation. Evans and Novack are guests columnists today.)

WASHINGTON — Two days after the Republican national platform extolled Alexander Solzhenitsyn as a "great beacon of human courage and morality," one of Henry Kissinger's top aides used the word "fascist" in describing the anti-Communist Russian novelist.

The comments were made Aug. 19 by the highly respected Winston Lord, State Department policy planning director, in an off-the-record session with the Department's student interns. Some of the interns present quote Lord as saying Solzhenitsyn "is just about a fascist." Lord says he did not call the writer a fascist but does not deny using the word.

Behind this unfortunate hyperbole is an undeniable truth: hostility toward Solzhenitsyn within the policymaking machinery headed by Secretary of State Kissinger has not subsided since June 1975, when it convinced President Ford he should snub the Nobel laureate. At the State Department, Solzhenitsyn is still viewed as a threat to world peace rather than a symbol of freedom.

Judging from his reluctance to accept the Solzhenitsyn plank at Kansas City, Mr. Ford shares this view as he does Dr. Kissinger's other positions. Nor is he likely to be challenged. Most of his policy advisers agree with Foggy Bottom in branding Solzhenitsyn as a slightly barmy 19th century Russian mystic.

Thus, the bipartisan foreign policy establishment has been successful in downgrading Solzhenitsyn since his triumphant arrival here a year ago. He has been a key target of the detestists, both in the Kremlin and on the State Department's seventh floor.

The view from the seventh floor was revealed in Lord's Aug. 19 session with the student interns when he was asked about Solzhenitsyn. He replied that it had been a mistake not to invite the Russian expatriate to the White House — an admission which is now State Department doctrine.

Lord went on to praise Solzhenitsyn's brilliance and courage but added that his views, if carried out, could threaten world peace. Then, as reported immediately thereafter by one intern and later confirmed by others, Lord said in matter-of-fact tones: "Let's face it, he's just about a fascist." He concluded by saying Solzhenitsyn fulfilled a desire by many Westerners to feel moral.

When asked to confirm or deny this, Lord told us: "I did not call him a fascist. He's not a fascist." As to whether he used the word "fascist," Lord said he would have to consult the transcript. However, no transcript was kept.

The spirit of what Lord said was

Tragic Diseases Wear Disguises

Love's most tragic valentine is venereal disease. It punishes brief lovers. Long after they have repented, it can leave its mark on their children. Doctors thought they could wipe it out 25 years ago with the discovery of penicillin and the sulfonamides.

We are in an age not so much of sexual freedom as sexual license. The young men and women most anxious to use the new license are most prone to be victims of syphilis, gonorrhea, chancroid and lymphogranuloma.

The shame has been taken away from sexual promiscuity. There should be no shame in reporting to a physician for an examination for venereal disease. The infections are so insidious that frequently no symptoms are observed.

Last year there were an estimated 3 million males and females with gonorrhea. There were almost 100,000 cases of syphilis. The U.S. Public Health Service states that there are 800,000 American women with infectious gonorrhea who are untreated carriers.

Some believe that gonorrhea now ranks second to the common cold. The germ, a gram-negative called Neisseria gonorrhoeae, is delicate. It dies at once if exposed to air. It thrives and multiplies on a moist mucosal surface.

The germ requires an incubation period of from three to seven days, although it has been known to lie dormant in women for one year. In males, an infection of the urethra produces intolerable burning. In women, it is common to be asymptomatic.

faithful to private views held inside the Ford administration. That explains the fierce opposition to any mention of Solzhenitsyn in the Republican platform. When Mr. Ford backed down rather than risk a disastrous floor fight with the Reagan forces, Kissinger was furious. He even threatened to resign the next day if the amendment were accepted (prompting an admonition from one sharp-tongued Ford operative that he ought to quit today, not tomorrow, to generate more delegates for the President).

The Ford-Kissinger attitude is duplicated on the Democratic side. A pro-Solzhenitsyn plank was quietly rejected by the Democratic platform-drafting group and never reappeared in open sessions. Key advisers, contending that Solzhenitsyn has taken on a right-Republican coloration, advise Carter not to raise the matter in speeches or in forthcoming debates with the President.

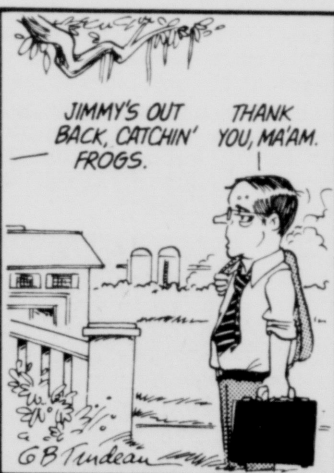

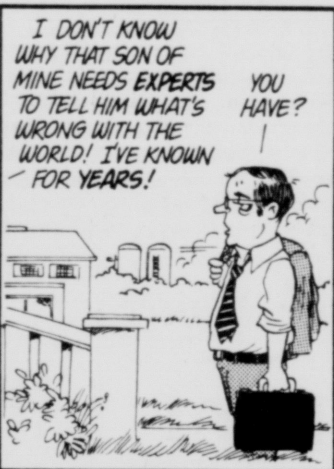

Since Solzhenitsyn is neither a right-wing Republican nor a fascist and might be considered rather moderate considering his life's experience, the real objection is not to his ideology but to the threat he poses to détente. "That participation in the affair (a banquet honoring Solzhenitsyn) as either a deliberate negative signal or a sign of administration weakness in the face of domestic anti-Soviet pressures...Not only would a meeting with the President offend the Soviets but it would raise some controversy about Solzhenitsyn's views of the United States and its allies... We recommend that the President not receive Solzhenitsyn."

While that recommendation is now conceded to be a political error, the philosophy behind the memorandum flourishes in the Ford administration. When Winston Lord told student interns that the Russian expatriate's political views threaten world peace, he was unveiling the hard onsensus of the U.S. foreign policy establishment which now seems the conventional wisdom in Washington.

Economic Indicators In Error

WASHINGTON — President Ford's rosy portrait of the American economy may be based in part on inaccurate information from the Commerce Department.

But Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson isn't eager to correct the misleading figures. Disclosure of the apparent statistical misrepresentations would not be "in the best interest of the Bureau, the Department, or the nation," wrote a Richardson aide.

What he means, we suspect, is that the disclosure would not be in the best interest of President Ford's election bid.

The controversy centers on one of the nation's leading economic indicators, the so-called "M-3 Series" — the manufacturers' shipments, inventories and orders. The figures are supposed to reflect changes in business activity and serve as a basis for forecasting economic trends.

Census Bureau economist John Bullock discovered what he believes to be a "substantial understatement" in the M-3 "unfilled orders" figures more than four years ago. Only recently has the bureau quietly begun an internal review to determine whether the indicator is accurate.

The Census statisticians have uncovered discrepancies in numerous components of the complex index. These cumulative errors may have thrown the indicator off by as much as 100 per cent over the past 14 years.

Bullock contends that the Commerce Department is misleading the public by not admitting that the index is inaccurate. The potential error is so great, he notes, that it can easily lead to a "misreading of the cause and strength of the so-called economic recovery."

In fact, the department carefully downplayed some bad economic news in its public report of a related index. Generally, the department publishes charts each month showing the value of inventories. In May, June and July this year, the figure hit an all-time high — not a good economic sign. The graphs, which should have displayed the dramatic increases, were omitted twice and distorted once, according to insiders.

On orders of Chairwoman Pat Schroder, D-Colo., the House Census subcommittee is investigating Bullock's theory.

Footnote: Commerce spokesmen insisted that the missing graphs and President Ford's need for good economic publicity were coincidental. The M-3 review would be "a fairly long range process." The spokesmen asserted that the month-to-month change in the figures was accurate.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER: Party labels apparently don't mean much when right-wing politicians get together.

Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., for example, is helping fellow John Birch Society member Dick Davis, who is running for Congress in Colorado as an independent. McDonald appeared at a testimonial dinner for Davis. It was, a McDondid spokesman said, "a personal friendship thing."

Democrat McDonald himself benefited from a political visit to his Georgia district by a Republican, Idaho's conservative Rep. Steve Symms. Symms characterized the trip as "kind of a mixed bag," since he also stumped for presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

In any case, Symms said that he admired the Georgia Democrat and that "93 per cent of the time he votes with the Republicans ... Larry McDonald really ought to be a Republican."

Symms' trip has created problems for him with the GOP faithful. House Republican Leader John Rhodes asked him not to go to Georgia. Symms went anyway. This outraged the Georgia GOP chairman, who angrily attacked Symms for his lack of party loyalty.

"In my opinion," Symms snorted, "We (Republicans) should spend our money ... to defeat liberals" rather than concentrate on strictly party labels.

NO-SHOW JUNKET: As one of his last official acts, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, invited members of the House to a two-week NATO military tour of France, Italy, Greece and Turkey. Not a single congressional member accepted.

As president of the North Atlantic Assembly, Hays recently sent a letter to the U.S. delegation inviting them to go and suggesting that "if you know of any other members who might be interested ... let me know."

The tour began Aug. 29, but even the luxury DC-9 provided by the Italian government wasn't enough to entice an American legislator. Their absence from this and two previous tours has led European NATO delegates to complain that America is no longer interested in NATO.

But the real reason they stayed home is a combination of the Hays-Ray scandal, the time it would take from campaigning and a steady diet of publicity on junketeering.

The Main Campaign Begins Today, with a Ford not on the Road

By UPI
The election campaign begins in earnest today, and everyone but President Ford will be on the road.

Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee, and GOP vice presidential candidate Robert Dole are scheduled to attend the Southern 500 stock car race at Darlington, S.C., at about the same time. Each will ride around the track in an "official" car to wave to the crowd.

Carter and his running mate, Walter Mondale, begin week-long campaign tours today. Carter opens his campaign in Warm Springs, Ga. before going to Darlington. He then goes to Norfolk, Va., Newark, N.J. and New York City today. Mondale appears in Akron, Ohio, St. Louis, San Jose, Calif., and Los Angeles. Dole makes his second trip to the South in four days in an effort to prove "we are not writing off anything" and then returns to Washington for two days, during when he plans to release his financial data.

Ford had no public plans for today, traditionally the day on which politicians begin their campaigns with tributes to working men and women. The President begins his campaign next week at his alma mater, the University of Michigan.

American Independent party candidate Lester Maddox was campaigning on the West Coast. He said Saturday night Carter is "totally dishonest" and that both Carter and Ford not only are "soft on Communism they are weak on Americanism. If you want to see socialism and Communism spread in this country, then you vote Democrat or Republican."

Ford attended church Sunday, as did Dole. The President went to St. John's Episcopal church across from the White House and then played golf. Dole attended Foundry Methodist Church, also near the White House, and went to his Senate office to catch up on work. Carter attended Plains Baptist Church in Georgia. He said, "if there's one thing that gives stability and continuity to my life in the hurly-burly and constant pressure of a political campaign, it is coming home to Plains every weekend, coming to my church, listening to my teacher."

Hoods, Burning Crosses on Stone Mountain

Klan Holds Its National Rally

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — The National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan illuminated the Georgia sky Saturday night with a cross burning at the foot of Stone Mountain, the legendary home of the hooded order. "Without the Klan, the whole world would be lost," said Imperial Klaliff James Lumpkin of Thomaston, Ga. About 200 Klansmen from 17 states and spectators gathered in a cow pasture owned by Imperial Wizard James Venable, a Stone Mountain attorney, for their annual Labor Day weekend national rally. After a round of speeches, about 30 hooded Klansmen encircled three crosses, lighted them and marched around to recordings of church bells, "God Bless America" and "The Old Rugged Cross." Mist rose from the pasture as the Klansmen, most of them in white hoods, held torches in their right hands and extended their left arms in a salute toward the blazing crosses. Venable said Sunday that the Klan was "rebirthed" on the top of Stone Mountain in 1915. He said the original Klan was founded in 1866. Hand-lettered signs reading "Down with Forced Busing," "When You are Forced You are Not Free," and "Down with the NAACP" adorned the platform from which Venable and "grand dragons" from eight states made fiery speeches.

Klansmen conduct their fiery ritual.

NY SENATE RACE

Candidates 'Debate' with Much Show, Little Else

NEW YORK (UPI) — The five contenders for the Democratic Senate nomination provided more theater than debate Sunday in a televised forum marked by bitter charges, countercharges and even courtroom dramatics. The moderators of WNBC-TV's one-hour "Election Special" tried their best to keep the discussion to issues, but the candidates seized every opening — and even created some of their own — to snipe at their opponents. Daniel Patrick Moynihan charged Rep. Bella Abzug with "McCarthyism" for a recent radio ad her campaign committee ran which included what he said was a "doctored" tape of him and Richard Nixon. Mrs. Abzug responded with another blast at Moynihan for his service in two Republican administrations. City Council President Paul O'Dwyer took off after both frontrunners for the Senate nomination with a charge that their "broiling" was splitting the Democratic party and turning voters off. The biggest grenade was lobbed by Abraham Hirschfeld, who charged that Moynihan has not voted in a general election in New York since 1960 and didn't even vote in the April presidential primary although he campaigned hard for Sen. Henry Jackson. To support his charge, Hirschfeld dramatically pulled out a sheaf of documents from the Delaware County election board where Moynihan was registered and ceremoniously passed them over to moderator Joe Michaels. The allegation left the former Harvard professor stammering on the air. But he later said the documents, which bear his signature, were "just wrong" and he has voted in every general election either from New York, Cambridge, Mass., or with absentee ballots. Moynihan did concede he failed to vote for Jackson in New York's presidential primary but said he never received his absentee ballot because of a mixup in the mails. Even Ramsey Clark, the mild-mannered candidate who has carefully avoided campaign histrionics, became involved in the fray. In a moment of magnanimity, Moynihan termed his difference with Clark over the former U.S. attorney general's call for a $30 billion cut in the defense budget "an honest disagreement." "If it's an honest disagreement it's not demagoguery," snapped Clark, referring to a speech Moynihan made on Aug. 25 assailing the proposed $30 billion cut as "nothing less than demagoguery." "I was referring to the McGovern $30 billion," Moynihan replied, a remark made all the more confusing by his statement on an earlier televised interview Sunday that he voted for George McGovern for president in 1972. The furious exchanges, which became comical at times, gave proof to a remark Moynihan made at the start of the forum. Reminded the show was being aired live, he said, "Live, but it's not life." Meanwhile, Sen. James L. Buckley, CR-N.Y., whose seat the five Democrats are trying to capture, said Sunday Moynihan was "surprisingly sound" on the issues of foreign policy and defense spending. Interviewed on WCBS-TV, Buckley added that the former U.N. ambassador has claimed authorship of the Democratic platform which, the senator said, "is a charter for the ruination of the American economy." On the issue of aid to the financially ailing New York City, the state's junior senator said President Ford's "basic positions were sound." "I believe that the best interests of the people who live in New York, who work in New York, and depend on New York City services is to make sure that the city fathers have a certain amount of heat applied to the soles of their shoes, so they'll really try to put our house in order," he said. Buckley and his challenger for the GOP senate nomination, Rep. Peter Peyer, also appeared on WNBC-TV's "Here and Now" show Sunday morning to kick off the day's round of television politics. Peyer predicted that Buckley would get less than 40 per cent of the vote in a race against the Democratic Senate nominee whereas he could win the November election with the support of moderate Democratic and independent voters.

It was a Peanut Carnival... and everybody had a ball

WOODSTOCK—Seedling Playgroup, part of Family of Woodstock now at 47 Rock City Road, is the only day care center in the village and like everyone and everything, it is feeling the results of the recession. The center which had been in operation since the Spring of 1973 closed in mid-July and the committee is now concentrating on funding with the hope of re-opening this fall.

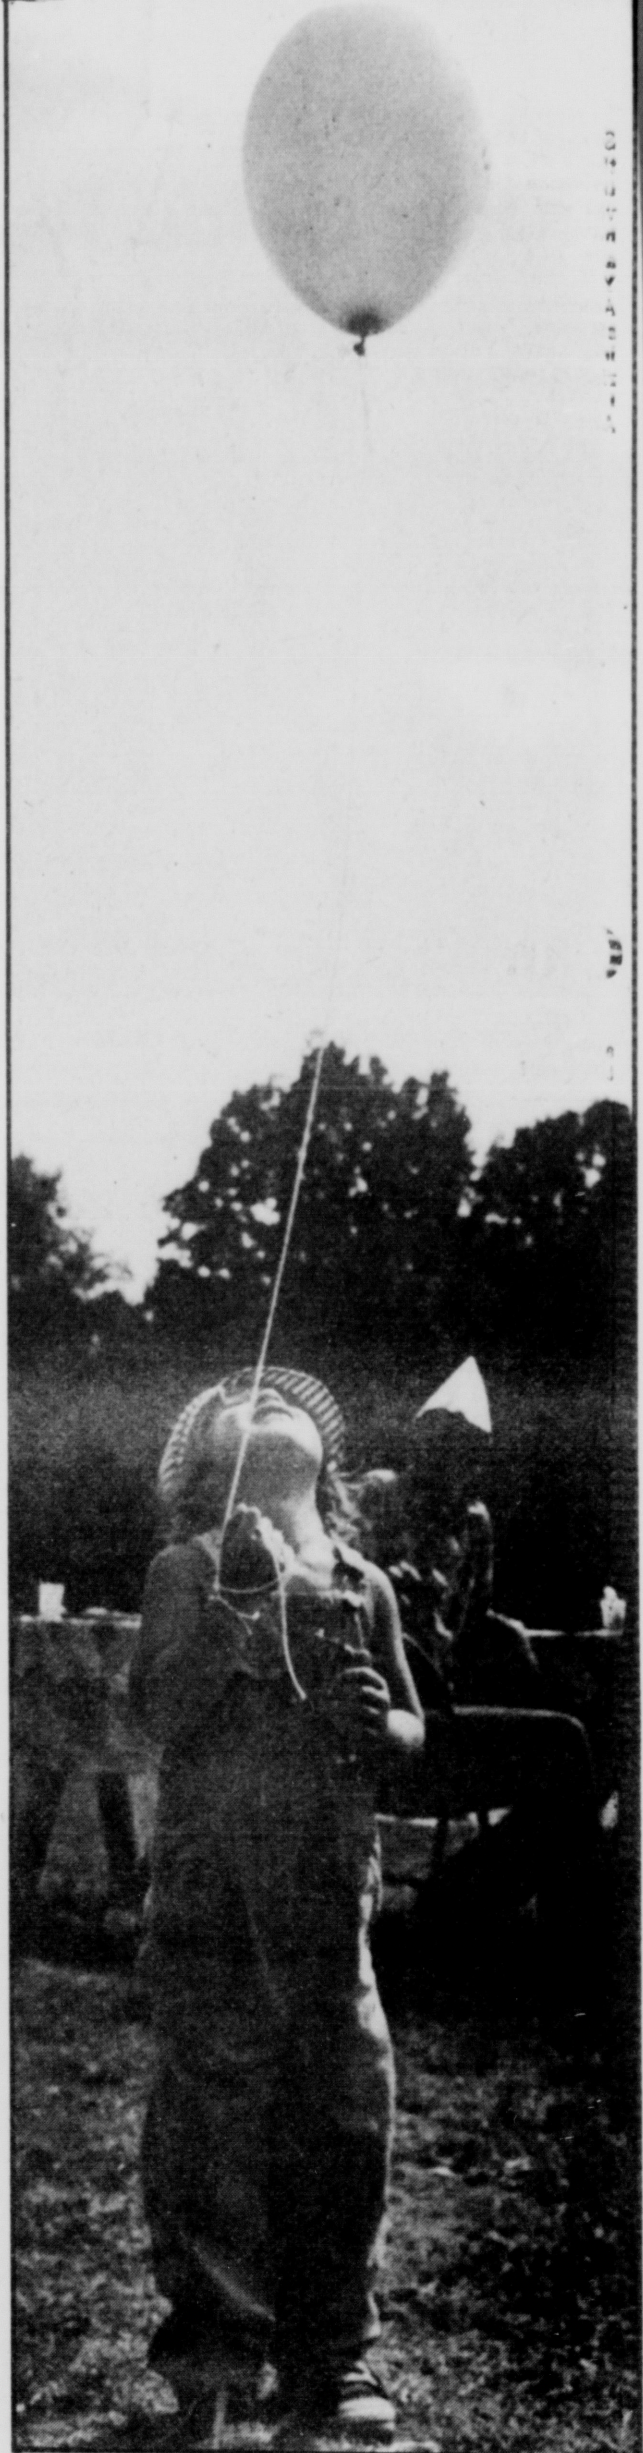

The first event to raise money was the Peanut Carnival held recently at Andy Lee Field. A large crowd responded to the benefit in spite of the hot day, and additional events are now being planned.

In the meantime, the day care center committee is working toward state accreditation and recruiting youngsters for the fall. Children, ages one and a half to five, may be registered by calling either Megan Daly or Debbie Conathan at Family in Woodstock.

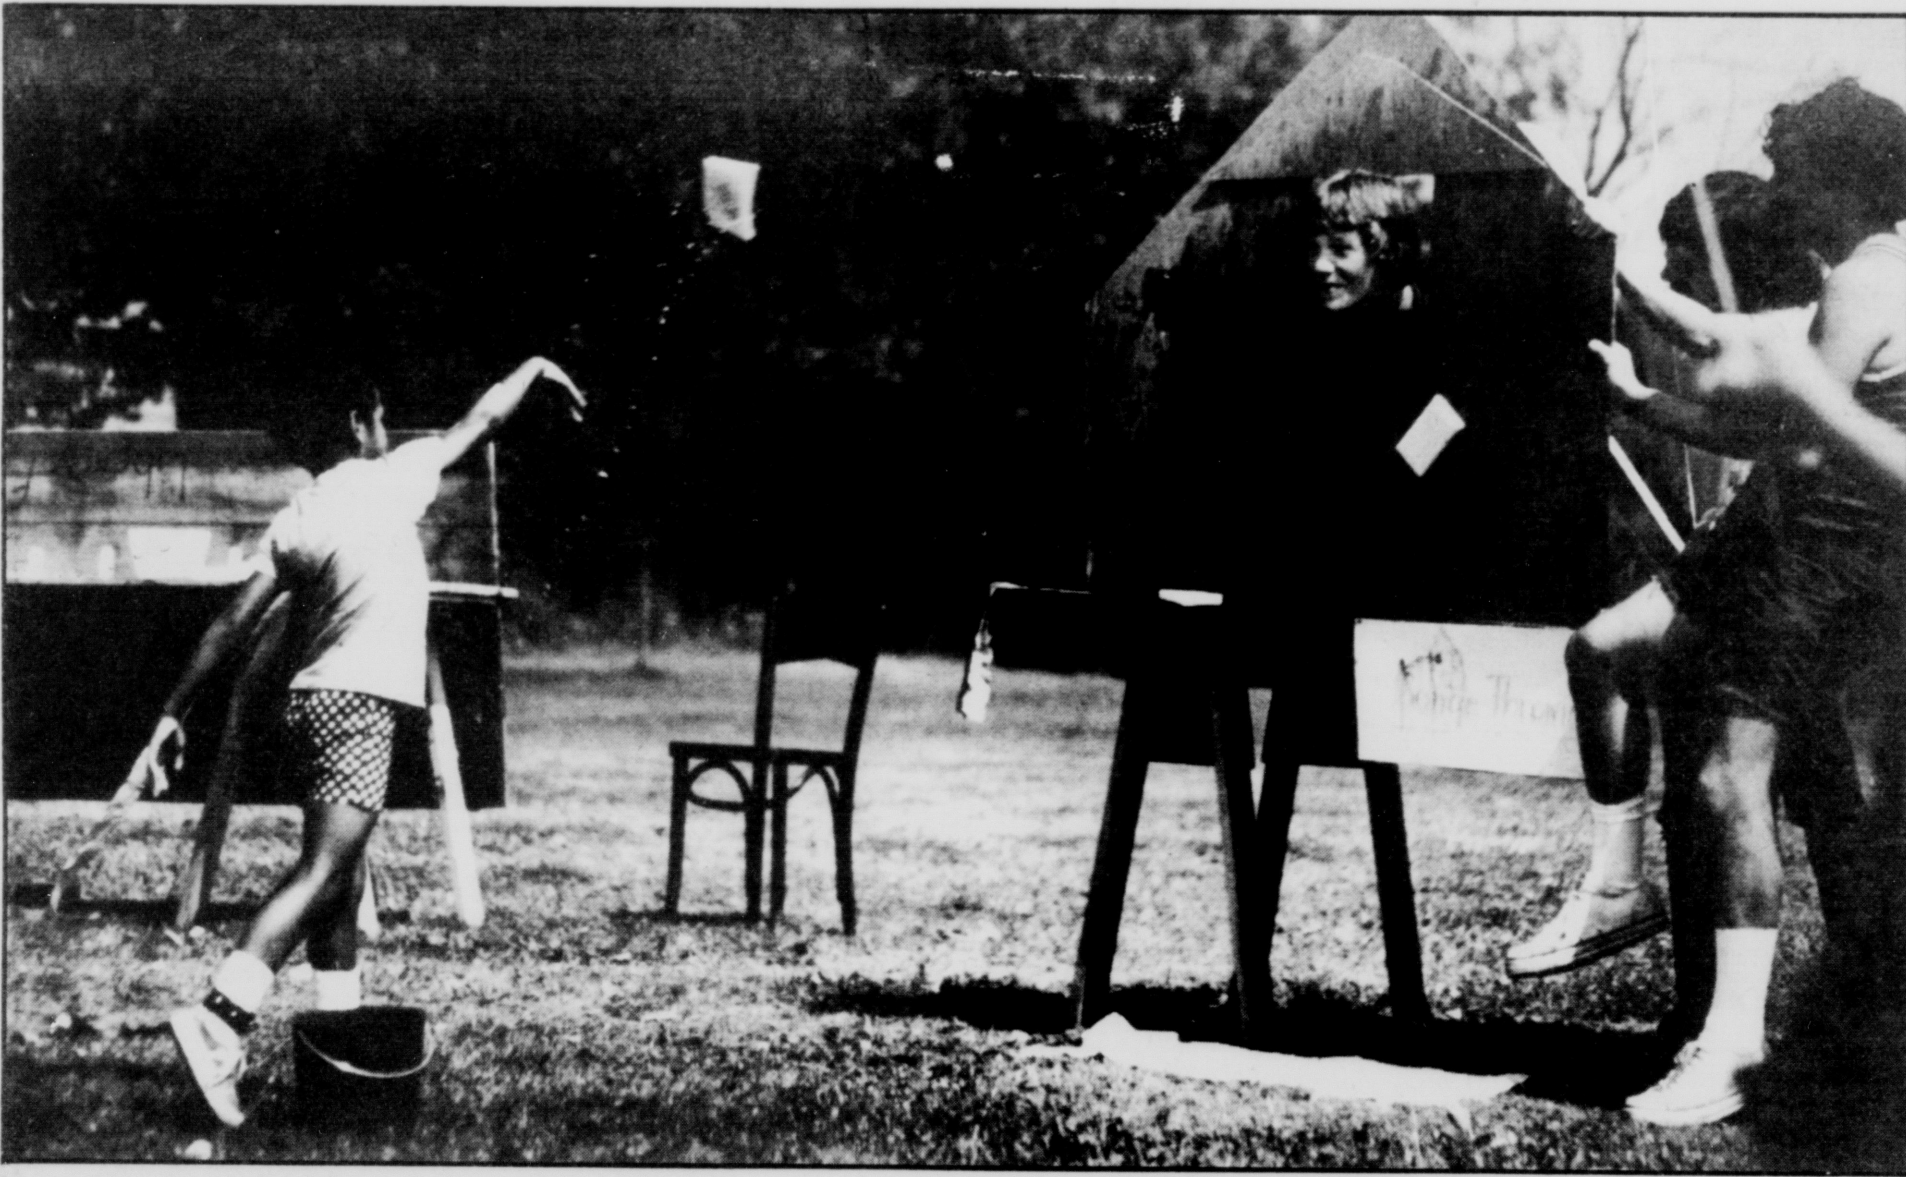

"Seedling Playgroup" is really more than a baby-sitting program," notes Ms. Megan. "We have state certified teachers on the staff. The committee would like to conduct a free day care center for Woodstock residents, but until funds are available for this type of project, the fee will be 75 cents an hour.

The center committee is planning to re-open as soon as possible, at the end of this month or the beginning of October.

Canning Boom Prompts Precautions

CHICAGO—There has been advice galore this summer about how to can and preserve fruits and vegetables to make them safe as well as savory. At least 8,000,000 home gardens were tilled, planted and harvested in America this year and the produce from many has gone into larders in jars and freezer bags along with tons of fruits and vegetables bought at the height of the season.

This canning boom has prompted the Department of Safety and Research of the Combined Life Insurance Co. of New York to urge that as much care be taken in consumption as should have been taken in production.

Of particular importance is the deadly botulin toxin that can lurk in low-acid vegetables such as beans, corn, zucchini, cabbage, carrots and peppers, particularly when they have not been cooked under pressure.

To help promote dinner table safety, Combined's experts recommended a few simple precautions, including:

—When someone gives you the home canned results of a backyard garden, do not hesitate to inquire if the jams, preserves or vegetables have been subjected to boiling water baths after being placed in jars. In the case of vegetables — even tomatoes, which are sometimes low in acid — they should have been cooked under pressure. If the answer is "no," thank the donor, and throw out the gift later.

—If home canners follow the advice of Agriculture Department authorities, they will have used self-sealing caps with screw bands. The bands may be set aside for future use when the seal is set, but the lids should be discarded as soon as they have been removed.

—Examine each jar before opening. If there is a bulging lid, a break in the seal, any sign of mold or indications of fermentation bubbles, boil the contents for about 20 minutes before taking a sip, and then if you have any doubts, throw the jar and contents into the garbage.

—Do not be concerned about a black deposit that may develop on the underside of the lid. Some foods contain elements that cause these stains even in a well processed, thoroughly sealed jar.

—The odor of preserved food should be the same as it was before it was placed in the jar. If it does not smell just right, if it seems soggy, cloudy or spurts when you make a hole in the lid, throw it out — and in a place where no human or animal can touch it. Wash your hands thoroughly, as well as the utensil you used to open the jar. Scrub the surface on which you were working. Botulin may be present.

Storage of canned goods is important, too. Combined safety experts recommended they be kept in a dark, dry place at a temperature of 70 degrees or less. Refrigerated foods should be held at a maximum of 40 degrees while frozen fruits and vegetables are best at 0 Fahrenheit.

"Remember, above all," said a member of Combined's safe cooking corps, "that just because produce from your garden was canned as soon as it was harvested does not automatically mean that it is safe. What you do to it is what makes it safe — or dangerous. Making it safe requires not only proper preparation but careful handling until it appears on the dinner table."

Fall Registration Scheduled at UCCC

STONE RIDGE—Ulster County Community College will begin late registration at its Stone Ridge campus Tuesday night, Sept. 7, for part-time evening students wanting to sign up for the fall semester courses, according to Registrar Eugene Turgeon.

Late registration for night courses will continue Wednesday and Thursday nights, Sept. 8 and 9 and Monday, Sept. 13. The hours will be 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. all four nights at the registrar's office in Vanderlyn Hall on the Stone Ridge campus. Students who wish to register late for classes being held at the Life-Long Learning Center at Coleman High School in Kingston, may do so during the same hours there all four late registration days. An evening counselor will be located there for this purpose. There is a $5 late registration fee.

DEAR ABBY

Dear Abby...or Dear 'Popo'; It's Really the Same Thing

DEAR ABBY: In reading about your 40th high school reunion, we were most interested in learning that your nickname is "Popo."

We lived for a while in Micronesia (a Pacific Island) where Truskee is spoken, and "popo" in Truskee means "pregnant."

We have a loyal and sensitive dog, which we appropriately named Popo. Just thought you would like to know about your namesake.

DIANE DIANE: Thanks. I have several other namesakes. Popo is short for Popocatapetel, a volcano in Mexico. And it's also the German word for that part of the anatomy on which one usually falls.

DEAR ABBY: My only grandchildren (a boy, 14, and a girl, 15) live in a distant state, and I always remember them handsomely at Christmastime.

Last March I received a letter from their mother (my daughter-in-law) that said, "Barby and Sonny have asked me to thank you for your fabulous Christmas gifts, and they're terribly ashamed that they never got around to thanking you themselves."

I replied to that letter as follows: "As far as I'm concerned, Barby and Sonny have not as yet acknowledged my Christmas gifts properly; furthermore, they are old enough to write their own thank-you notes, and it's high time they learned some manners."

Next thing I knew, I got a snippy letter from my daughter-in-law, saying, "If you're going to make such a big deal out of thank-you notes, please don't send the children any more presents."

Abby, you know perfectly well that I am not going to forget my grandchildren at Christmastime. Was I wrong to complain?—HURT NANA

DEAR HURT: Yes. And your daughter-in-law was also wrong to have written that snippy letter. What motivates your giving? Is it the pleasure of giving? Or the pleasure of being thanked?

There is no excuse for the rudeness your grandchildren showed, but if their lack of appreciation irritates you, you should tell THEM, not your mother.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 9 years old and I want a horse more than anything in this world! Dad said, "You can have a horse if you can pay for it, plus all the equipment and the upkeep."

The horse I want costs $150, but I don't have the money. I don't get an allowance, and I can't earn money doing chores for the neighbors because they say I'm too young and I might get hurt.

I can't earn any money doing chores around my own house because my folks say I live here and should do whatever I can for nothing.

I have run out of ideas. How can I get the money?—HORSE-CRAZY IN INDIANA

DEAR HORSE-CRAZY: I'm afraid you will have to be patient until you are able to EARN the money—unless you can persuade your dad to lend it to you with the understanding that you will repay him when you become a wage earner.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

Rifton Artist Listed in Who's Who

RIFTON—Franz Heigemeir, a German-born graphic designer and painter is listed in Marquis' "Who's Who in America" and is represented in the 1975 edition of "Who's Who in the East." The criteria for inclusion in these books is that of achievement — achievement which influences the ongoing life of modern society.

His type face designs and designs of new alphabets, appear in national and international publications and on television, including Petrocelli and others.

His paintings are in major exhibitions and in private collections. In 1973 he was honored with an article by the French art magazine, "La Revue Modern" which calls him "a spontaneous and dynamic painter."

In addition to his design work he teaches credit courses and credit free courses in both calligraphy and typography at several area colleges. He resides with his wife and two sons in Rifton.

Musical Series Begins Tuesday At New Paltz College

NEW PALTZ—Japanese virtuoso violinist, Syoko Aki, will perform in McKenna Theatre on the campus of State University at New Paltz Tuesday, Sept. 7, 8:30 p.m., in the first event of a semester-long series of Tuesday evening music events.

A graduate of the Toho School of Music in Tokyo and the Yale School of Music, Syoko Aki has been a member of the Yale String Quartet since 1967 and concertizes widely in this country and abroad. This is Miss Aki's second appearance at the college; her performance last year was accorded a standing ovation.

Appearing with Miss Aki will be well-known pianist Harry Jensen, a member of the music faculty at State University College.

Series tickets for all 15 of the fall semester's Tuesday evening concerts are available through the Department of Music and at the box office the evening of the concerts. Subscriptions are priced at $15 for general admission, $12 for college employees and senior citizens and $8 for students. Individual tickets for Miss Aki's concert may be purchased at $2, $1.50 and $1 respectively.

This event is being made possible in part by a grant from the Student Government Association Classical Concert Committee.

Will Meet

FISHKILL—Retired teachers of the Southeastern Zone will convene Tuesday, Sept. 14 at the Fishkill Holiday Inn at the intersection of Routes 9 and Int. 84.

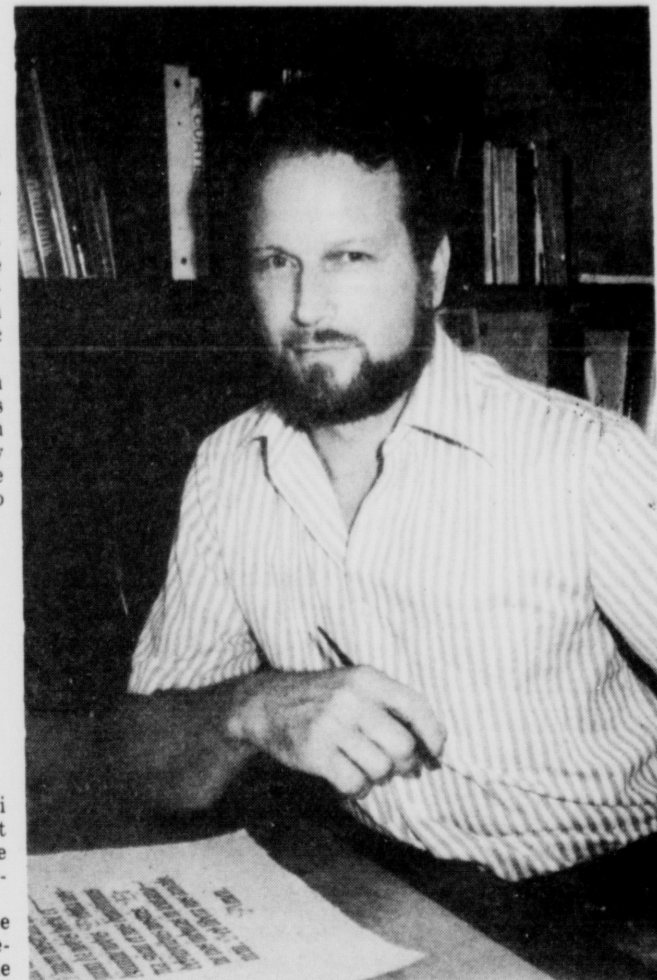

The business meeting will begin at 10 a.m. the main feature will be a musical program presented by the "Merry Wives" from Hyde Park. This group is composed of Joyce C. Ghee, Lyn Burnstine, and Doris Adams.

employment office is preparing a list of people who decline to accept work with apple growers. Warned Kramer, "Unless those individuals have valid reasons for not complying, this department will take appropriate action to close these cases."

Among valid reasons, he cited health and transportation problems, but said social services could help with the latter in some cases.

Kramer also took exception to a statement by growers spokesman Ashton Hart that fruit farmers have had to turn for help to other states, after asking for help here. The commissioner said he had suggested early last spring that social services recipients be considered as a source of employment when the harvest season began.

At a later meeting in his office, attended by growers—including Hart—and members of Kramer's staff, he said, "We asked if they would like us to act on their behalf to recruit help, and they said they would rather use the employment service. The suggestion was satisfactory to us, since both agencies were cooperating in this matter."

Kramer said his department has had no further request from growers. Even so, he said, both social services and the employment office are still making efforts in recruiting.

Kramer maintained that if jobs are available and people on home relief are capable of doing the jobs, they should take the jobs and get off the relief rolls and back into the work force, even on a temporary, seasonal basis.

"By law, we are required to send them to the employment office," he said, "and if a job is available, they are supposed to go."

That would not include the always certain percentage, he said, who could never pick apples because of illness or physical problems.

"Fruit farmers could still get some percentage of workers from us," Kramer said. "We are not offering work under a work relief program. We are offering jobs to people to work as many hours as they want to work, and to make considerable money between now and the end of October."

The commissioner said his department could try to recruit only those workers available on the countywide system, but individual towns could place social services people in the orchards on their own by request from growers.

"We're saying that we have a job for them picking apples," said Kramer, "and if they say no and can't explain why, we're having the employment office advise us, because they ask the question and we don't. And if they say no and can't explain why, my department is supposed to close that case."

However, the investigators said, this was not enough to "make a significant difference in the risk of prison"—a risk that remained less than one chance of prison in 100 arrests.

Courts throughout most of the state adjusted to the new law in about a year, the report said, but it took two years for the New York courts to restore the normal balance between case loads and case disposition.

The investigators found one favorable result. They said police were wrong in fearing the restrictions on plea bargaining would make it too difficult to induce suspects to act as informants on higher-ups.

"Despite the tough restrictions, there is apparently enough flexibility left in pleading and sentencing to induce some offenders to cooperate with law enforcement agencies," the report said.

The study was financed by a $457,575 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Veteran Brothers Are Killed At Home

DETROIT (UPI) — The eight Thomas brothers all fought in World War II and survived. They have the medals—including five Purple Hearts—to prove it.

Survival on the streets of their own neighborhood has not been as easy.

Alexander Thomas, 58, became the second of the brothers to be killed in a street crime. A robber or robbers stabbed him to death for $18 Saturday.

His older brother, Leonard, was killed in a similar street robbery in May 1975—outside the house the two bachelors shared with their younger brother, Raymond, a widower.

"I can't get over it," Raymond said Sunday of the latest tragedy.

"We fought all over the world, but right in this neighborhood is where we really want to be... Something is really wrong here."

Police said Alexander Thomas was found lying in the middle of the street, four blocks from his house. He had been stabbed repeatedly in the neck and shoulders. His assailant or assailants took his wallet, containing the money and personal papers.

Officers theorized Thomas was attacked from behind and robbed when he returned home from a restaurant where he had gone to visit the waitresses. The restaurant had closed by the time he arrived.

The victim had been a forward observer with a mechanized regiment in the European theater during the war. He won a Bronze Star for bringing news of enemy troop movements back to the American lines on a motorcycle.

Between them, the eight brothers won five Purple Hearts, a Bronze Star and a Silver Star.

Raymond Thomas said the brothers had pulled close together following the slaying of Leonard last year.

"We knew we had to pull together," he said. "It was getting just like the war again, only more so."

Of his most recently slain brother, Raymond said:

"He took the worst the Nazis had to throw at him, and he bounced back each time."

"Now, something like this, on the streets of his old neighborhood, I don't get it."

Labels Must Say No Cake Frosting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three cake-mix companies that do business in the state have agreed to specify on their mix boxes that the mixes are not complete in themselves, Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz announced Sunday.

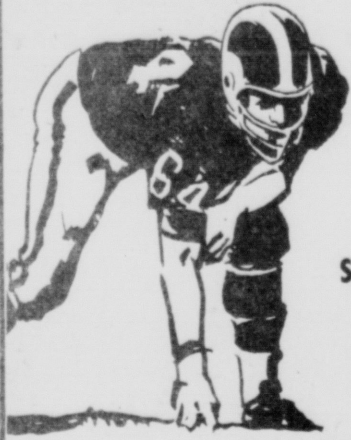

Until now, Lefkowitz said, the labels on Proctor and Gamble's Duncan Hines cake mix boxes show a fully frosted cake even though frosting is not included in the mix.

Nabisco, meanwhile, has been selling Dromedary cake mixes and Gilster-Mary Lee has been selling store-brand mixes whose labels show the finished product without saying on the front of the box that these mixes do not include such necessary ingredients as eggs, milk and shortening, Lefkowitz said.

Lefkowitz said all three companies have signed assurances of discontinuance and agreed to alert the consumer that the mixes are not complete.

In addition, he said, the companies, agreed to pay the cost of the action against them to the state.

Pete Boyd strains to reach shot

SPORTS TODAY

Zeesh Outlasts Boyd, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2 For County Title

KINGSTON — There was a time Sunday at Forsyth Park when Bill Zeesh's reign as king of Ulster County tennis appeared in jeopardy. That was when challenger Pete Boyd broke Zeesh's service to open the third and deciding set of the County Championships' men's singles finals.

His back seemingly to the wall, Zeesh quickly broke Boyd's serve to even the set, then ran off four more games in a row to pull away from Boyd and win his fifth straight crown.

The scores were 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

Service breaks proved to be the pivotal factor throughout the match as neither player could effectively take control. In the end, Zeesh served just well enough to prove the superior player.

The first set was tied at three games apiece when Zeesh captured three straight games to move on top. Boyd, who had double-faulted several times in the opener, got the better of Zeesh in the second set, frequently scoring with fine passing shots.

That set the stage for the finale in which Boyd broke in front, then saw Zeesh steady his game to win. The only hint of a possible Boyd comeback came with Zeesh serving at match point and the score 5-1. Boyd broke the serve to close the margin by a game. But Zeesh in turn broke Boyd's serve and it was all over.

In the mixed doubles finals Friday night at Forsyth, Boyd and Sue Jordan combined to defeat Pete Zeesh and Chris Miller, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

That battle appeared to be swinging towards the losers' favor in the second set and the beginning of the third set with Zeesh and Miller leading the decisive third, 3-1, after winning nine games in a row.

But Zeesh suffered a pulled leg muscle at that point and it slowed him down enough to make him less effective the rest of the way. That opened the door for Boyd and Jordan to prevail.

Nastase Keeps His Cool, Advances at Forest Hills

FOREST HILLS (UPI) — Ilie Nastase, aware that just one more abusive outburst could get him tossed out of the U.S. Open, Sunday was on his best court behavior and did not protest seriously even once in defeating Marty Riessen, 6-2, 7-5, to advance to the fourth round of the $416,600 tennis championship.

Nastase, 30, filed a letter of protest with Tournament Referee Charlie Hare about the officiating during his match last Friday in which he defeated West Germany's Hans-Jürgen Pohmann. The often bitter duel ended with Nastase shouting abuse at umpire George Armstrong of England, querying nearly every call and making obscene gestures to the crowd.

Nastase listed six points in his letter, but the main theme was that Armstrong should not have called for a doctor during the vital third set when Pohmann went down three times with cramps. He also maintained the referee (Hare) should have taken over when Armstrong lost control of the match.

Hare had no immediate comment, saying, "The letter has to be discussed by the championship committee," but he did say Saturday that "some action" will be taken in respect of Nastase's behavior on Friday.

Nastase was greeted by boos and a few cheers by the capacity crowd when he took the court against Riessen.

He ignored the boos and was completely low key, much the same as he was at Stockholm last December where he won the Masters championship for the fourth time after being defaulted against Arthur Ashe early in the round-robin series when he lost control of his temper.

Nastase queried his first call in the fourth game of the opening set, but when the umpire ruled in favor of Riessen, Nastase turned his back and looked directly at Jimmy Connors, who was sitting in a box with his girlfriend, Margie

'I had no problem with him today, but I knew I wouldn't. That's his pattern.'—Marty Riessen.

Wallace, tennis coach Pancho Segura and his business adviser, Mitch Oprea.

Connors gave Nastase hand signals to calm down, to stay cool.

Nastase did approach the chair and ask the crowd not to make calls during the rallies, something that has upset many of the other players.

There were no real fireworks during the match. There was very little of the vintage Nastase shot-making which allows most people to forgive his antics, no matter how outrageous he becomes.

Nastase broke in the fourth game but was immediately broken at love. But he hit back to lead 4-2, held for 5-2, and then broke Riessen again on errors by the 34-year-old American.

Riessen brought the crowd to its feet when he broke in the first game of the second set, but Nastase broke back to square the match at 2-all. He broke through again at 5-3, but was broken to 15 when he served a doublefault at game point while serving for the set and match.

Nastase, however, made no mistake in the 12th game after he had held at love to 6-5. He reached 40-30, one match point, and wrapped things up with a deep volley.

Nastase said, "I don't want to give interviews until I lose. What can I do? Every time I say anything, I get complaints. People call me a 'big monster.' That's not true. I'm just a 'little monster.'"

Riessen said, "I had no problem with him today, but I knew I wouldn't. That's his pattern."

Riessen said Nastase should have been disqualified Friday. "No one person is bigger than the game. They (tournament directors) have got to make up their minds whether they want him to play or not. His foul language and obscene gestures must not be tolerated."

With Chris Evert and Bjorn Borg, the reigning Wimbledon champions preceding Nastase on court and winning easily in their bids for the "Big Two" double, the Stadium Court audience of 15,852 saw no real fireworks.

The day, however, was not devoid of upset. Russia's Olga Morozova, the eighth seed, became the latest casualty on the gray courts of the West Side Tennis Club, 6-4, 6-4, to Kathy Kuykendall of Miami, Fla., in a third round women's singles match.

Seven of the 16 women's seeds have now crashed, while six men, including big names like Arthur Ashe, Harold Solomon and Adriano Panatta, are also sitting on the sidelines with the 12-day Open just five days old.

(See TENNIS, page 10)

Cal 500 To Unser

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — Veteran Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., a two-time Indianapolis champion, became the first repeat winner of the California 500 Sunday when he held off Johnny Rutherford and won by 2.6 seconds.

Unser, who won this race in 1974, scored only his second victory of the U.S. Auto Club championship car season. Gordon Johncock, who is chasing Rutherford in the USAC points race this year, was a close third.

Unser, 42, notched his 24th career USAC champ car triumph and led the final 22 laps. When the last yellow flag of the day came off on the 196th lap, Unser pulled away from Rutherford and Johncock and seemed to have everything his own way for the remainder of the race as the other two tried in vain to catch him.

Rutherford, this year's Indianapolis 500 winner who maintained his lead over Johncock in a bid for his first national driving crown, led from the 158th through the 177th laps of the 200 lap event around Ontario's 2.5 mile oval. Unser, who won the Phoenix 150 at the start of the year, took only eight pit stops while Rutherford made 10 and Johncock nine.

The last yellow flag of the day had to come out when Johncock hit a beer can that had been thrown onto the track on the 193rd lap.

From the $314,000 purse, Unser won $82,986 while Rutherford earned $37,756 and Johncock got $29,811.

Wally Dallenbach was fourth two laps down followed by Tom Bigelow and Jan Opperman.

Unser averaged 143.246 miles per hour in his Cobre-Offy and took three hours, 29 minutes and 25.76 seconds to complete the race.

Bill Putterbaugh was seventh followed by off-road racer Rick Mears, Bobby Olivero and Jerry Grant.

A crowd of 52,466 was on hand in 85-degree weather to watch the seventh Cal 500. The temperature was in contrast to that during the previous week when the thermometer rose to 110 degrees in practice and qualifying.

Pole sitter and defending champion A. J. Foyt of Houston had to leave after 77 laps because of a loss of oil pressure.

Foyt, who won his sixth career USAC driving title last year, left the hospital bedside of his mother in Houston to go here. She suffered a stroke two weeks ago.

There were 19 lead changes in Sunday's race and the yellow flag was out nine times for a total of 49 laps.

In a spectacular accident, former drag racer Danny Ongais of Carlsbad, Calif., in a Parenelli-Cosworth, landed upside down on the third turn after hitting the wall on the back straight. The car rolled over several times. However, Ongais suffered only a sprained left ankle.

Ongais, who said he did not know what happened, crashed on the 54th lap. Poncho Carter hit the wall while attempting to avoid the Ongais' machine and also was put out of the race.

Syracuse, Poughkeepsie Gain Moose Final

KINGSTON — The teams from Syracuse and Poughkeepsie will square off on the National Little League diamond this morning at 10 a.m. for the championship of the New York State Moose Baseball Association.

The pairing was determined here Sunday as Syracuse defeated quarter-final opponent Corning, 3-1, and semifinal foe Endicott, 6-0, while Poughkeepsie was trimming Kingston II, 10-3 and Riverhead, 8-1.

Endicott had beaten Binghamton, 10-2, and Riverhead had tripped Cortland II, 19-5, to secure their berths in the semifinals before finally succumbing to the championship contenders.

Poughkeepsie scored early and often to eliminate the last of the two host teams. Kingston I, the defending champion, had been KO'd by the same Poughkeepsie team Saturday.

Syracuse had Sunday's top pitching performances as Phil Dillmora tossed a four-hitter in the win over Corning and Frank Vignone blanked Endicott on five hits in their meeting. Endicott had shown power with three homers in their quarterfinal win over Binghamton.

After two pitchers had been utilized in disposing of Kingston, Poughkeepsie got a two-hit effort from Lee Rywatt in the semifinal victory over Riverhead. Linescores on page 10.

Nicklaus Proves He's Far from Washed Up

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — The newspapers will start looking a little more pleasant to Jack Nicklaus now that he is $100,000 richer thanks to his victory Sunday in the World Series of Golf.

"It's been irritating," Nicklaus said. "I'm getting a little tired reading how poorly I've played and what a bad year I've been having."

"Sure, I hadn't won. But just because you haven't won doesn't mean you're washed up. And that's the implication I've been getting in too many articles."

Nicklaus surely ended any question about being washed up with his rather easy victory in the inaugural of the "new" World Series in its expanded format.

He faltered briefly at the start, then recovered with some nifty, albeit unaccustomed, scrambling.

"Obviously, I'm delighted," said Nicklaus, who had won only once in 1976 and seemed to be heading for the poorest year of his unmatched career.

"It's particularly nice to win when you haven't had that good a year, and especially at tournaments as significant as this one is going to be. You had a pretty darn representative field of world class players."

Nicklaus had a two-stroke lead starting the final round, but gave it away by the fourth hole, where he chopped it around the green like a Sunday hacker.

"I played very well from then on in," he said.

That lapse gave heart to his pursuers and brought back visions of Nicklaus' final round collapse last month in the PGA championship, where he took the lead on the fifth hole, lost it by hitting into water at the sixth hole, and never got it back.

But there was to be no repeat of that. The "Golden Bear" fought back on a mild, breezy and cloudy day to shoot a two-under-par 68 that gave him a -275 total, five under par for 72 holes on the long, demanding South course at Firestone Country Club, a four-shot victory over Hale Irwin, and the richest purse for a one-week tournament in golf history.

Irwin was the only other player in the exclusive, international field of 20 able to better par for 72 holes.

The victory was the 60th official title of Nicklaus' U.S. tour career, moving him within one of catching Arnold Palmer, the man he supplanted a decade ago as the game's leading player. It raised his winnings this year to $261,769 in 14 events, tops on the tour and an average of $18,697 for each start, and for his career to $2,803,542.

It also marked the seventh time—including four "unofficial" World Series of Golf under the old, four-man format — Nicklaus had won a tournament at Firestone, a course where he has earned $489,930 in 15 years.

This one came, however, in unfamiliar fashion.

His driving was erratic. On the front nine, he missed five of the seven driving fairways before getting straightened out and missing only one fairway on the back nine. Occasionally, when he did hit the

Ted Quits Colts' Job

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Coach Ted Marchibroda, who last year led the Baltimore Colts to the National Football League playoffs, resigned Sunday in a dispute over control of the club with owner Robert Irsay and general manager Joe Thomas.

Informed NFL sources said Marchibroda resigned when the three men met at the Milwaukee Yacht Club Sunday morning to air their differences.

Friction between Marchibroda and his two bosses has been growing through the preseason as the Colts, who last year compiled a 10-4 record, had struggled to an 2-4 exhibition season mark. On Thursday, the Colts suffered their fourth preseason loss in a row, bowing to Detroit, 24-9.

After Thursday's loss, Irsay blasted Colt players and coaches on the poor performance.

Afterwards, Marchibroda said, "I don't know if I've been fired or what. I may have to resign. I can't continue under these circumstances."

"If I'm to coach this team, then I need the freedom to coach it. I can't have locker room scenes like this every week."

On Friday, however, Irsay promised that Marchibroda would remain as coach and expressed confidence in the man who had taken the Colts from a 2-12 1974 record to the first round of the American Football Conference playoff in 1975.

The Colts lost the playoff game to the eventual Super Bowl champions Pittsburgh Steelers.

Marchibroda is known to have been unhappy with Thomas for losing numerous veterans through the expansion draft, trades and waivers without adding comparable players to the squad.

Two weeks ago, Thomas dealt reserve quarterback Marty Domres to San Francisco for a future draft pick and cash. Former all-pro linebacker Mike Curtis went in the expansion draft to Seattle, depleting the Colts' linebacking corps.

Thomas is pushing quarterback Bill Troup as the backup man to Bert Jones, but Marchibroda was known to doubt the rookie's skills and wanted Domres to remain.

Thomas, considered one of the league's best judges of talent, rebuilt the team after trading off such superstars as Johnny Unitas.

Thomas feels the Colts must stay young so it will not follow the pattern of relying on veteran players who suddenly cannot play. Thomas, who has made detailed studies on how to build a winning franchise, wants the Colts to add four or five rookies each year to the squad.

Marchibroda, who came to the Colts in 1975 after serving as an assistant to George Allen in Washington, wanted immediate help to bolster the team, which pre-season polls picked to win the AFC Eastern Division.

Steve Lobell Is Out of Danger

Hambletonian Winner Survives Brush With Death

DU QUOIN, Ill. (UPI) — Three-year-old trotter Steve Lobell went into shock and nearly died three hours after winning harness racing's richest and most grueling event, the Hambletonian Stakes, officials said Sunday.

The bay colt was stricken in his stall about three hours after winning the marathon four-heat contest Saturday at the DuQuoin State Fairground and earning his owners $131,762.

Dr. Tom Dunkin of Chicago, a former president of the American Society of Veterinary Practitioners, injected fluids containing vitamins and electrolytes into the horse and reduced its temperature from 106 to 102 degrees.

Dunkin said the horse suffered from "exhaustion and shock."

After the colt's temperature had dropped, Dunkin said it "was out of danger and I predict can follow a normal racing program."

While the colt was walked before going to his stall for the night, a big cheer sprang from an assembly of grooms who had worked for two hours with cold towels, ice packs and alcohol applications to save his life.

Trainer and driver Billy Houghton, who drove Steve Lobell to the fourth-heat raceoff win over Zoot Suit (driven by Vernon Bancer) and Armbr Regina (driven by Joe O'Brien), said the colt was "recovering from a terrible ordeal."

Houghton said he would like to ship the colt, owned by attorney Richard Herman and restaurant operator Murray Siegel, both of New York, to a paddock on the grounds of his home in Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y., by Tuesday.

Although Steve Lobell was two-thirds the way home to the triple crown of trotting, Houghton had few nice things to say about Saturday's race.

"If a thoroughbred had to do what this horse did, he wouldn't eat for a week," Houghton said.

Houghton said if it had been his own horse he would have scratched him before the final race.

In the third heat of the race, Steve Lobell broke his gait when he suffered a four-inch gash on his leg.

Steelers Show They're Ready

By UPI

It took two doses of humility and the passing abilities of Terry Bradshaw to convince the Pittsburgh Steelers they are ready to defend their National Football League championship.

And boy, are the Steelers ready.

Pittsburgh decimated the hapless New York Jets Saturday night, 41-6, as Bradshaw completed 17 of 20 passes for 245 yards and two touchdowns to send the Steelers on a winning note into their 1976 opener this Sunday at Oakland.

The Steelers ran off four straight wins at the outset of the preseason but then took two swallows of humility—being shut out at home by the previously inept New York Giants, 17-0, and then losing in a no-count rematch of the Super Bowl to the Dallas Cowboys, 20-10.

Since the Oakland contest will probably be the toughest game the Steelers play this season, Pittsburgh needed a healthy showing in its preseason finale to restore the aura of confidence that carried the Steelers to the Super Bowl championship the past two seasons.

"We needed a big game before Oakland," Bradshaw proclaimed. "Personally, I've been semi-nothing the past couple of weeks. I did some things tonight that I haven't been doing in the past. I wanted to throw more on first down since I'd been running too much, and I think it opened things up. I wanted to mix up the offense a little, give them a lot to worry about. This can't help but give us confidence, we got serious tonight."

"We came out in the first half determined to show we were the team that won the world championship."

"We're going into some hostile territory next week. Oakland couldn't be a better test for us. We have to open under the most adverse conditions imaginable. We've beaten them a couple of times now in big games, and I know they'll be ready, probably sky-high."

Bradshaw was the impetus for the healthy showing against the Jets, picking apart the inexperienced New York secondary during the three quarters he worked. Bradshaw threw 11 yards to Rocky Bleier for the first Pittsburgh touchdown and 29 yards to Lynn Swann for the Steelers' third TD.

Bleier also rushed two yards for a touchdown with Franco

Harris contributing two more scores on rushes of five and 10 yards. Defensive back J.T. Thomas supplied the final points when he scooped up a Steve Davis fumble and jogged 14 yards for a touchdown with less than two minutes remaining.

The Steeler defense sacked Joe Namath six times for 54 yards and got to his replacement, Richard Todd, four more times for 37 yards in the fourth quarter.

In other games, Cincinnati defeated Tampa Bay 21-13, Oakland routed Seattle 45-28, Dallas beat Houston 26-20, Miami downed New Orleans 20-7, Los Angeles toppled San Francisco 10-3 and San Diego tripped the New York Giants 14-13.

John Reaves, playing the entire game in place of regular Ken Anderson, passed for 272 yards and three touchdowns to help Cincinnati finish its exhibition season at 4-2 while Ken Stabler passed for three first half touchdowns as Oakland closed out its preseason at 5-1.

Scott Laidlaw scored from 10 yards out with 6:44 gone in the overtime period to give Dallas its win and send Houston down to its sixth straight loss. Laidlaw also scored two fourth quarter touchdowns as the Cowboys rallied from a 17 point deficit.

NATION'S TOP RIVALS IN PUBLIC EDUCATION MEET FACE-TO-FACE

A debate between Albert Shanker, AFT, and Terry Herndon, NEA, two of public education's most powerful men, will be aired on Labor Day by WAMC, Albany/Mt. Greylock.

Black Nations Take Part Too

S. A. Trade Thriving

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The apartheid regime of white-ruled South Africa has "thriving" trade relationships involving hundreds of millions of dollars annually with its black African neighbors, according to the American Jewish Congress.

An AJC study reaching that conclusion was designed to take some of the sting out of criticism by U.S. black leaders of growing commercial relationships between Israel and South Africa.

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the AJC, also releasing letters between himself and Bayard Rustin of the Black Americans to Support Israel Committee, said South Africa last year imported $340 million worth of coffee, timber and other commodities from black African countries and exported $493 million worth to them.

Rustin, in his letter, expressed "a deep sense of concern and disturbance" about the visit to Israel last April by South African Prime Minister John Vorster and an announcement of plans to expand commercial and other relations between the two countries.

Hertzberg said economic cooperation between black African nations and South Africa was "evidence that, for the sake of economic survival, even profound political differences are often shunted aside."

"So it is with black Africa. So it is with Israel," he said, adding that 19 black nations trade with South Africa.

Hertzberg described such arrangements as "hateful to those committed to the values of social equality and human dignity," but added, "if it is wrong for Israel to have any relations with South Africa, why is not also wrong for black African states to have such relations?"

He said 212,282 foreign black workers worked in South African gold mines, more than 83,000 from Mozambique.

"The terms under which black laborers from Mozambique work in South Africa can best be described by the American phrase 'sweetheart contracts' — except that in this case it is the Mozambique government rather than a labor union that signs the contracts for the workers," the report said.

It said the mining companies pay the workers 40 per cent of their wages, giving 60 per cent to Mozambique in gold bullion. When the workers return, they get the 60 per cent in Mozambique currency and the government keeps the gold — getting a profit of 200 per cent.

Officer Kills Man In Arrest

BUFFALO (UPI) — An off-duty police officer shot and killed a man early Sunday after the victim came to the aid of another man who was resisting arrest, police said.

Police officer Willie Maples, 31, who was off duty at the time, arrested William Barclay, of Buffalo for disorderly conduct in a tavern.

Barclay then hit Maples with a sugar container and ran outside, with Maples in pursuit, police said.

Maples told authorities that John Smith, 44, of Buffalo, then came to Barclay's aid. Maples said he fired a few warning shots and then was grabbed from behind by Smith, who was holding a tire iron. Maples said he pulled away from Smith and shot him in the leg.

Smith died a short time later in a Buffalo hospital after doctors were unable to stop the bleeding.

Police said all such cases are submitted to a Erie County grand jury for consideration.

La Scala To Open At JFK Center Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The curtain goes up Tuesday night on La Scala, Italy's glittering and costly 200th birthday present to the U.S. Here, in dress rehearsal Friday, are opera stars Margherita Guglielmi, left, and Angelo Romero in "La Boheme."

Too bad all the patriots aren't around for the $2 million, two-week show by the world's most storied opera company, Milan's 198-year-old Teatro Alla Scala.

Music lovers or no, they would take special delight in a rich cultural serving for their still young country.

That's not to say a lot of Americans, weaned on rock 'n roll and hammered by hard rock, won't appreciate Macbeth, La Boheme, Simon Boccanegra and La Cenerentola in the maiden U.S. visit by La Scala.

"Don't be fooled," said Martin Feinstein Sunday. The executive director of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts said the operas and Verdi's Requiem are more than a gesture to monied, tie-and-tails Americans.

"This is a magnificent occasion — a tribute to all Americans. To those who now listen to opera on their automobile radios. To those who go to opera in Houston and Atlanta and Tulsa and Miami and other towns," he said.

"The Italians know how far we've come." So, La Scala is ready to deliver despite an earlier cancellation of the trip over the weakened lira, bad publicity over CIA nosing into Italian politics and the logistics of shipping scenery, musicians and people. The curtain goes up at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday on Verdi's tragic Macbeth for a crowd of 2,300 in the marbled Kennedy Center's Opera Theater. There will be a peppering of business suits and short dresses (a sign of maturity, perhaps, for the Milanese go sans tie to their teatro at $2.50 a head).

All of the performances are sold out at up to $50 a seat. And opera lovers around the country will have to make do with reports of how it was for New Orleans born Shirley Verrett as Lady Macbeth and such Italian stars as Piero Cappuccelli and Ottavio Garaventa.

Except for brief choral performances of Requiem in Philadelphia and New York, La Scala will not make a tour on this long-awaited visit.

We'll invest in your future to better ours.

Like any first rate outfit, the United States Navy is only as strong as the men and women who represent it. So we're ready to put a little stock in you if you can make the grade.

Through our Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps (NROTC), you can now get a four year scholarship at your choice of one of the nation's 54 leading colleges and universities.

And that includes tuition, fees and books. Plus $100 a month. For a $16-20,000 value, depending on the school you pick. And that's a lot of bucks.

You benefit. And so do we. Because when you graduate, you'll be a Naval officer. With world travel and leadership ahead of you. As a part of our team, the United States Navy.

So hurry. See if you qualify. Visit your local Navy recruiter, or call toll-free 800-841-8000. In Georgia call 800-342-5855. We'll be in touch in no time.

Because our future depends on you.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, SEPT. 7
Your Birthday Today: In a year of almost spontaneous personal progress, you take on more than can be conveniently handled. By managing to figure some means to work your way up out of the problem, you learn priceless skills and wisdom. Relationships are subject to quirks of circumstance, need care to avoid misunderstandings. Today's natives pursue serious reforms, often are highly literate people gifted in the art of effective speech.
Aries (March 21-April 19): People get underfoot, and you must clear up details. Let others seek publicity and welcome! Let them also take credit for the pile-up blocking progress.
Taurus (April 20-May 20): Make haste slowly, so you won't cover last week's errors.
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Tackle work efforts with a minimum of comment, little discussion of recent events. Associates flabbergast everybody. At noon, pieces begin to fall in place.
Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be alert for a full productive schedule or take off altogether for an expedition. News from faraway is encouraging, could be a basis for a new start.
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You gather support, perhaps financial backing for any reasonable project. Your own judgment of others' schemes suffers from over optimism, misplaced enthusiasm.
Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Rephrase and repeat to make sure you are understood. Hobbies are potential sources of better contacts. Show off a bit, but don't confide inside information.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get the fall season off to a roaring start! With care to get figures straight the first time, you can obtain a special advantage. An inventory is in order.
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): On a day suited to full-scale work programs, your mind is busy building castles in the air. Combine the two factors creatively, but avoid speculative moves.
Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Things smooth out, and you take too much for granted. Somebody, not in place, is unable to communicate or cooperate. Checking in advance averts such problems.
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick to conventional methods. People fall for showmanship, fancy gestures, but only for the moment. Talk directly with officials if dealing with institutions.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A plunge into an extended long term venture has good prospects of eventually succeeding very well. Use all the facilities available to stage your presentation.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): New advice puts your situation in a different perspective. Business and work plans are subject to revision as people change their ideas, specific ations.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

MEAN: (Q.) Earl broke up with me because I was so mean to him. I am still very fond of him but I guess I really hurt him. I think the reason I was so mean was because he was always around. I took him for granted. I didn't care what happened.

to his face. — Really Sorry in New York.

(A.) Write Earl a simple and warm note, asking him to forgive you. Tell him how much you still care for him. Ask him to be your friend if he can. Maybe he can do that much.

He is so very special to me and I can't forget him. I know nothing would get him back now because he doesn't even like me as a friend. I think he thinks I can't stand him. It's really the complete opposite.

NEW MALE: (Q.) Listen, please. My mom has a boy friend. When he is not around, she is really nice to me and does things with me. But when he's here, she gets all tensed up and I have to take the rap.

It really hurts me because I love her and couldn't find another mother as good as she is.

My family is great except when my mom's boy friend is here. I lost my father by divorce and now I seem to be losing my mother, too. — Frozen Out in Florida.

(A.) Family tension is almost inevitable when a divorced mother finds a new male friend. He puts demands on her time and attention. It's hard for her to concentrate on both her family and him at the same time.

The family has to get accustomed to the new situation, and it isn't easy.

Please try to be patient and understanding with your mother. When she and her new friend get their plans all worked out, maybe things will be better. He may turn out to be a great and welcome addition to your family.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE
 PLAY WITH ODDS

A chicken read my last article on bridge probability, and the next day she was laying odds. In spite of such hazards I must write once more about playing with the odds rather than against them.

South could easily take seven trumps and three side aces. He could also set up a diamond trick by giving West one diamond. Then he might make his 12th trick by way of a finesse.

However, West had overcalled and therefore was likely to have both of the missing kings. The odds were against either finesse.

Fortunately, South saw another line of play, favored by the odds. Look for it before you read on.

SETS UP LONG SUIT
 South discarded a spade on the ace of diamonds, drew trumps with dummy's six and led dummy's jack of diamonds, discarding another spade. West took the queen of diamonds and return a diamond to dummy's ten. South discarded the queen of spades. Now South cashed the ace of spades, led a trump to the seven, ruffed a spade, led a trump to the ten and ruffed a spade with a top trump. This cleared the spades, and South returned to dummy with the queen of trumps to discard the queen of clubs on dummy's last spade.

DAILY QUESTION
 As dealer, you hold: ♠KJ8 ♥5 ♦KQ9874 ♣K109. What do you say?
ANSWER: Most experts would open this borderline hand (with one diamond); some would pass. If the long suit were a major (hearts or spades rather than diamonds), more experts would open with one of the long suit.
